GERMANS LEAVE ISLE

Today

The Warmest Welcome.
Secretary Davis' Example.
Extra! Terrible Trust.
A Bad Picture.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

E. M. STATLER, who built many hotels providing comfort for hundreds of thousands, died suddenly yesterday. He will meet William Shenstone, who wrote:

Who'er has travell'd life's dull round,
Where'er his stages may have been,
May sigh to think he still has found
The warmest welcome at an inn.

TEN young soldiers went up together in a three-engine, metal Ford airplane. The ten all jumped together, with parachutes, and all landed safely, breaking the simultaneous parachute jumping record.

ARMY aviators have enthusiasm, because Mr. Davis, Secretary of War, sets the example in flying, and his assistant, Trubee Davison, although smashed up in an airplane accident at the beginning of the war, is another constant flier.

Men are ready to follow where their superiors lead.

LONDON worries about great newspaper trusts. Rothermere, Beaverbrook, and one or two others threaten to swallow all the newspapers of Great Britain.

There is one consolation in dealing with newspapers, the people have the initiative, referendum and recall. They can buy or refuse any paper—and they can ruin any paper by refusing to buy it.

They would be better off if they had the same power over elected officials.

RUBBER workers in Brazil hurry down the Amazon to the place where Henry Ford has bought rubber concessions from the state of Para. They hear that Henry Ford pays big wages—he does—and they all want to work for him.

LED by real estate will-o'-the wisps a lot of Americans rushed to buy land, more or less in the neighborhood of Muscle Shoals, under the impression that Ford would come down and make the land worth 10 times its real value. Ford did his best to stop that expensive foolishness, but it was impossible.

LORD BIRKENHEAD, one of England's really intelligent statesmen, protested against the British film "Dawn," showing the life and death of Edith Cavell, executed by Germans as a spy.

Lord Birkenhead says the question is, "Do we desire, or do we not desire, that a new era of peace should dawn in Europe?"

FRANCE and other nations in the course of bitter war executed women as spies. It was necessary, as part of the Allies' war police, to kill, through disease brought on by semi-starvation, thousands of German children. All that is part of a horrible past and its memory should not be kept alive for money-making purposes.

The film "Dawn," should not be exhibited in this country.

THE Bolshevik government will send out 50 scientific expeditions this year, some far into the north, some to the Crimea, the Caucasus, Turkestan and Monogolia.

Scientific facts and new sources of wealth will be explored.

RUSSIA has not shown much energy since Peter the Great sent expeditions to open mines in distant parts of the empire.

Revolution is rough, but it does stir men's minds.

THE League of Nations statistical department says countries engaged in the big war had a total population of 1,400,000,000 and that war cost 37,000,000 human lives.

TEN million one hundred and thirty-five thousand were killed in the war. Births, on account of fathers being away, etc., diminished by 20,850,000. "Spanish flu" and other causes increased civilian mortality by 6,016,000.

THESE frightful figures should make peace permanent, but they won't. All that horror would be forgotton in the first flaming up of international hatred. The fighting dog doesn't remember the wounds of his last fight.

AMERICAN travelers buying American cars of American make in Europe are compelled to pay duty when they bring those cars into the United States. President Coolidge is requested to stop that nonsense.

If travelling Americans have sense enough to buy good American cars abroad, instead of snobbishly buying cars of European make, for heaven's sake encourage them. American labor is in those cars. American manufacturers have made the profit. What more does the tariff want?

A BRITISH woman, Lady Heath, without saying much about it, casually flies all by herself from Egypt to London. If Dido, Queen of Carthage, had enjoyed such facilities, her story would have been told differently.

Sister Against Brother in Election Fight! Mrs. Lawrence Opposing Flinn Candidates

SISTER against brother!

This is one of the unusual features in the hot political fight being waged in the Thirty-fifth Congressional district.

Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, active in the Pennsylvania Elections Association, last night appeared as a speaker for James M. Magee for Congress.

Her brother, George H. Flinn, is on the Republican organization slate with Congressman Harry A. Estep, Magee's opponent.

"Election officers who take orders and try to steal the election in the Thirty-fifth district, and all others, this time are looking a jail term in the face," Mrs. Lawrence warned her audience.

Plane Gets Pair

POINT AMOUR, Quebec, April 17.—(By Marconi Wireless to the Canadian Press.)—Exhausted and fearing the worst, Baron von Huenefeld was ready to shoot his companions and himself—and then the fliers sighted land.

This dramatic episode of the Bremen's trans-Atlantic flight was revealed today in a message relayed by wireless and telephone.

"Baron cold and exhausted," the simple narrative said, "feared that they would never reach land. Ready to shoot companions if worst came to worst.

"Baron came at once to lighthouse after landing and was given dry footwear. Refused to eat until his companions left plane first. First meal was biscuits and fresh milk. Baron feels the cod and anxious to reach New York."

"Fitzmaurice says Labrador is not Ireland—is warmer there. Koehl does not complain. All very modest. Most thankful to have accomplished such a feat."

OTTAWA, April 17.—(By the Canadian Press.)—A message from Quebec this morning reported that the crew of the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen was on its way from Greenley Island to Murray Bay in a relief plane piloted jointly by C. A. (Duke) Schiller and Dr. Louis Cuisinier.

The message read:

"Nine-thirty a. m. Seven Islands reports crew of Bremen on board Canadian transcontinental hydroplane piloted by Dr. Cuisinier and Duke Schiller jointly; will arrive at Murray Bay about noon. A Junkers plane from New York will take Fitzmaurice, Baron Von Huenefeld and Capt. Koehl direct to New York. Montcalm to take Bremen to Halifax for repairs."

The Junkers plane mentioned would be the F-13, sister ship of the Bremen, which went to Montreal yesterday with a Junkers pilot and the daughter and son of president of Junkers, German plane manufacturer.

FIRST WORD

The relief plane was taken to the island by Schiller and Cuisinier from Murray Bay and yesterday Schiller flew back to the mainland with Maj. James Fitzmaurice, Irish member of the Bremen crew, leaving Baron Von Huenefeld and Capt. Koehl, the

3 CONFESS TO VOTE FRAUDS

21st Ward Election Board Members Plead Guilty.

The campaign to purge Allegheny county of cheating at the pools won its greatest triumph in Criminal Court today when three members of the election board of the Twentieth District, Twenty-first Ward, unexpectedly interrupted their trial and pleaded guilty.

Benjamin Foster, William Trautetter and John Blair confessed to the fourth of five counts named in the indictment—negligently making a false count and a false return. The other two members of the board, Margaret Ring and Charles Fuller, had not been placed on trial and were ready to testify for the Commonwealth.

At the request of First Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park, whose vigorous prosecution of the case which started yesterday won him an early plea, Judge Harry H.

Threat to Call 316 Voters as Witnesses Made by Marshall.

A threat to summon as witnesses the 316 voters of the Fourteenth District of the Twenty-first Ward in the trial of election board members for alleged frauds was uttered in Criminal Court today by Attorney Rody P. Marshall.

The threat followed a refusal by Assistant District Attorney Roy T. Clunk to admit that fraud was not involved in the voting check list exhibited. Clara A. Manes, of Juniata street, young and pretty clerk of the board on trial with three other members, identified the voting list checked by her. Clunk pointed out to the jury three or four erasures of names, stating his action was for the purpose of testing the credibility of the witness.

Marshall then declared that unless Clunk would renounce any charge of fraud he would summon the 316 voters on the list as witnesses to disprove fraud. The refusal of Clunk

TROOPERS STONED IN RIOT

Rioting broke out in the coal fields of Western Pennsylvania today, the second day's demonstration by the "Save the Union" committee to "spread the strike" and "oust John L. Lewis." Men and women joined in unruly demonstrations, police report. In the Frederickstown district a crowd of nearly 500 stoned state police who were compelled to ride into the mob with riot sticks, they say. More than a score of persons were arrested in three counties.

The most serious trouble broke out along Ten Mile Creek near Frederickstown, and spread into Greene and Fayette counties. Twenty-five persons were arrested at Millsboro, Fayette county, and two men were taken into custody on the Washington county side of Ten Mile Creek. Four women and a man were arrested at the Kinlock mine of the Valley Camp Coal Company, near New Kensington, and a woman was arrested at the Rich Hill mine of the McClane Mining Company at Meadowlands.

In the immediate vicinity of Pittsburgh, conditions were reported as quiet. At Coverdale the insurgent miners turned out for mass picketing and these were dispersed without trouble. The Avella district, where a crowd of 400 strikers gathered yesterday, was quiet this morning after wholesale arrests.

Mellon Leaves His Future to Providence

By Associated Press.

Washington, April 17.

SECRETARY Mellon has returned to his office from a vacation in Bermuda. He promptly denied a report that he planned to retire from politics and business at the end of the present administration, saying:

"That is the first I have heard of that. I do not know what I will do, but I suppose Providence will take care of me."

Pirates' Game Off

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

CINCINNATI, April 17.—The final game of the Pittsburgh-Cincinnati series, schedueld at Redland Field this afternon, was called off on account of rain.

Immediately upon receiving official word of the postponement, the Pirates were hustled into taxicabs and rushed to the Pennsylvania station, where they boarded a train for Pittsburgh, being scheduled to arrive in their home city at 10:15 p. m. tonight.

The Pirates open their home National League season on Thursday afternoon with the St. Louis Cardinals as their attraction. The game will start promptly at 3 o'clock.

COAL RATE CUT STAY DENIED

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The United States Supreme Court today refused to stay the effect of a West Virginia Federal Court injunction scheduled to go into effect Saturday, under which Southern soft coal fields will have reduced freight rates to Great Lakes ports.

The injunction, granted to railroads carrying coal from Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia to Great Lakes ports, reduces the freight rate 20 cents a ton, giving the southern fields an advantage in the Northwest market over Pennsylvania and Ohio soft coal fields. The injunction neutralizes the Interstate Commerce Commission famous "lake cargo" decision.

Application was made to Chief Justice Taft today for a stay, to prevent the injunction from going into effect. Chief Justice Taft referred the case to the entire court, and the question was argued for nearly an hour. At the end of that time the court denied the application.

The commission has announced its intention of appealing the case, in the regular procedure, which will take several months, and today's action of the court will not prejudice or affect the deliberations of the same court on the merits of the reductions. Meanwhile, however, the lower rates will be in effect.

PITTSBURGH GAMBLER SLAIN

ST. LOUIS, April 17.—(AP.)—A verdict of homicide was returned by the coroner today against Joseph Barnett, of Mount Pleasant, Tex., who shot and killed his friend and alleged gambling partner, Gilbert A. Hall, 36, of Pittsburgh, here late yesterday. Barnett was held without bond.

The motive for the killing was not clear. Mrs. Mamie Hall, the widow, told police after the slaying that Hall had attempted to be a peacemaker between Barnett and his wife. Asked about a motive, she said: "I don't know."

Barnett, wounded in the arm by a policeman when he fled, told police when arrested that Hall was "a gambler and a gunman" and said "he cheated me."

Forgotten Iron Causes Small Blaze

Some one went to bed and left the electric iron turned on in the kitchen of the home of J. Temenes, 5403 Black street last night, firemen reported. Neighbors aroused the family when smoke was seen issuing from the rear of the house. Firemen extinguished a small blaze which caused $50 damage.

PAYROLLERS CALLED TO HEAR VOTE ORDERS

Police and other city and county employes residing in the six East End wards have been given orders to attend a political meeting to be held tonight in Duquesne Garden in the interests of Republican organization candidates in that section.

Orders to the police to be on hand were issued to all stations late yesterday by Superintendent Peter P. Walsh. Other employes got their instructions in most cases orally from department and bureau heads.

The meeting is being held primarily to boom the campaigns of Mayor Charles H. Kline and George H. Flinn for national delegates, Congressman Harry A. Estep for re-election in the Thirty-fifth district, where he is opposed by James M. Magee, and Representatives Edward B. Goehring and John S. Purucker, seeking re-election in the Fourth and Fifth districts.

Orders for city employes to attend this gathering is said to be one of the causes of the resolution of George F. Kountz charging that city employes are being coerced in the present political campaign and demanding that the Mayor issue a to admit this was followed by an order by Marshall to one of his associates.

THREAT TO CALL

BLAST HAS ECHO

The Manchester explosion may prevent many of the voters from answering summons, political leaders admitted durin gthe noon recess, if Marshall follows his announced determination. Many were injured or forced to abandon their homes following the explosion, it was said.

Marshall's threat followed a spirited colloquy with Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff, of Kittanning. Regarded as one of the ablest judges who has sat in this county, this 36-year-old jurist sevevral times "sat on" Allegheny county's famous defense lawyer. They vigorously voiced contradictory recollections of the testimony. Once when Marshall mounted the steps leading to the bench behind Miss Manes, Judge Graff rebuked him for interrupting the cross-examination of Clunk and Marshall retired to his seat.

WOMAN GRILLED

Miss Manes was subjected to a grilling cross-examination by Clunk, particularly as to the uniformity of the tallies. The state alleges that the total was dictated by Edward Alston, a Republican leader, and that the tallies were made to conform.

Miss Manes, on direct examination, repeated the claims of Mrs. Anna Alston, wife of Alston, who is employed by the city. Alston was declared by Joseph H. Klein, judge of election and defendant turned state witness, to have accompanied District Chairman Harry Pattison, when they entered the polls and dictated the returns.

Defendants denied that anybody entered the polls and that the count was made by the board, with Klein calling off the ballots. They signed the return sheets at the request of Klein. Mrs. Alston and Miss Manes were the first witnesses called by the defense. Clarence A. Bower and aJmes Williamson are the other defendants on trial.

Klein alleged that the ballots were altered by erasures and additions to conform to the returns by Pattison, Gus Schindel and George Diehm after the primary election.

ENTER GUILTY PLEAS

Rowand agreed to defer pronouncing sentence until April 27.

Park today brought evidence tending to involve Danny Dixon, district chairman, in the irregularities which accompanied the September primaries. From the three defendants he learned that Dixon, not a member of the board, had read off the ballots and otherwise unduly taken on authority.

Park also brought out that the election board had been chosen illegally and that Fuller's name had been signed to the return sheets by one "Minnie Kline" (or Klein), a watcher.

The pleas of the North Side officials, the second group to be placed on trial, are expected to be watched with deep interest by the 200 other election officials under indictment.

Oil "Slush Fund" Search Encounters Blank Wall

OLD MEMO ABSOLVES SINCLAIR OF GIFT

By WM. K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—An old mystery was partly solved at the Senate oil inquiry today although the search for the Continental Trading Company's $3,080,000 Liberty bond "slush fund" ran into another blank wall.

Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian; Mrs. John T. Pratt, widow of the New York capitalist, and Clarence C. Chase, son-in-law of Albert B. Fall, took the witness stand but all thre declared they knew nothing about the Continental bonds.

Light was thrown on an old mystery by Chase. It concerned a memorandum found in the files of the Senate Public Lands Committee in 1924 while Senator Smoot (Rep.), of Utah, was chairman.

Chase indicated that Fall himself had written the memorandum which purported to show that Fall got his ranch money from a man since identified as Price McKinney, of Cleveland, and not from Edwin L. Doheny or Harry F. Sinclair. In it was one statement that "Fall had never attempted to secure, and did not secure and has not secured from or through Mr. Sinclair any moneys on this or any other account."

The memo also told how Sinclair had wanted to shoot game on Fall's ranch. It added:

"Mr. Sinclair never spent a dollar on it nor has he ever used it." It referred to Sinclair making the request "Jokingly" and asserted that the ranch was "worthless to Mr. Fall."

"Was that memorandum prepared by Mr. Fall?"

"I don't know, but I think so. It sounds like him " said Chase.

Pressed by Senator Walsh, Chase said the memo contained information that only he and Fall knew.

"Did you write it?"

"No, sir."

"Then F ll must have written it?"

"I suppose so, but I don't know."

The significance of the memorandum lay in the fact that Fall since has declared Sinclair paid him $233,000 for a third interest in his ranch property, which was to be turned into a hunting reserve. The memorandum termed this a "joke."

COAL MAN SHOWS HIS COSTS TO SENATE

By MAX HENRICI,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—J. G. Bradley, of Dundon, W. Va., formerly president of the National Coal Association, pointed to the Pittsburgh Coal Company today in testimony before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee as an example of the effect of the merger of small coal concerns into a great corporation. Consolidation, he declared, was no remedy for the distress with which the coal industry is afflicted. The only result of mergers often was, he said, that the consolidated companies merged their troubles.

Bradley, president of the Elk River Coal and Lumber Company, sees no need for federal regulation of the coal business. He himself, he testified, has been making money steadily. He submitted figures showing his company's tonnage output, cost of production and sales realization during the last five years, and there was a profit for each year. He attributed the success of his company in part to the fact that it has never employed union labor. His company's wages, he said, average $5.68 for an eight-hour day for all of its miners, both skilled and unskilled; and that, he added, is higher than the average wages paid skilled workers in the other great industries.

HOT WORDS PASS

His glowing description of conditions in the nonunion fields of Southern West Virginia led to the reading by counsel for the United Mine Workers of a section of the Federal Coal Commission's report of 1925, in which it pictured the region as lacking the advantages of modern civilized communities and the miners as more or less depressed by the operators.

Bradley said he supposed the passage had been written by a "lady uplifter," or by Dr. Edward T. Devine, whom he characterized as "an intellectual Jew." Senator Burton K. Wheeler took the witness sharply to task on the ground that he was sucering at Jews and uplifters. The Senator reminded Bradley that Jesus had been both a Jew and an uplifter. He also told the witness that Dr. Devine was not a Jew but a Methodist, and declared that if the rest of his testimony was no more accurate it was not going to receive much attention from the committee.

There was another exchange of sharp words when Bradley, on being required, after his attorney had objected to the question, to say what he thought of labor unions, answered the query by reciting the well-known nursery rhyme about Humpty Dumpty.

German crew members, on the island with Cuisinier. Schiller and Fitzmaurice landed 200 miles from the island at Natashquan and there had been no word of their having left there until today's message indicating that they had returned to the island and picked up the Germans and Cuisinier.

The message this morning was relayed by Quebec from Seven Islands. It was received by J. E. Bobeil, general superintendent of the government telegraphs here.

The operators said that the Bremen, damaged in landing on Greenley Island after carrying its crew of two Germans and one Irishman across the ocean, would be taken to Halifax on the Canadian government ice breaker Montcalm.

Nuptial Fire Incendiary

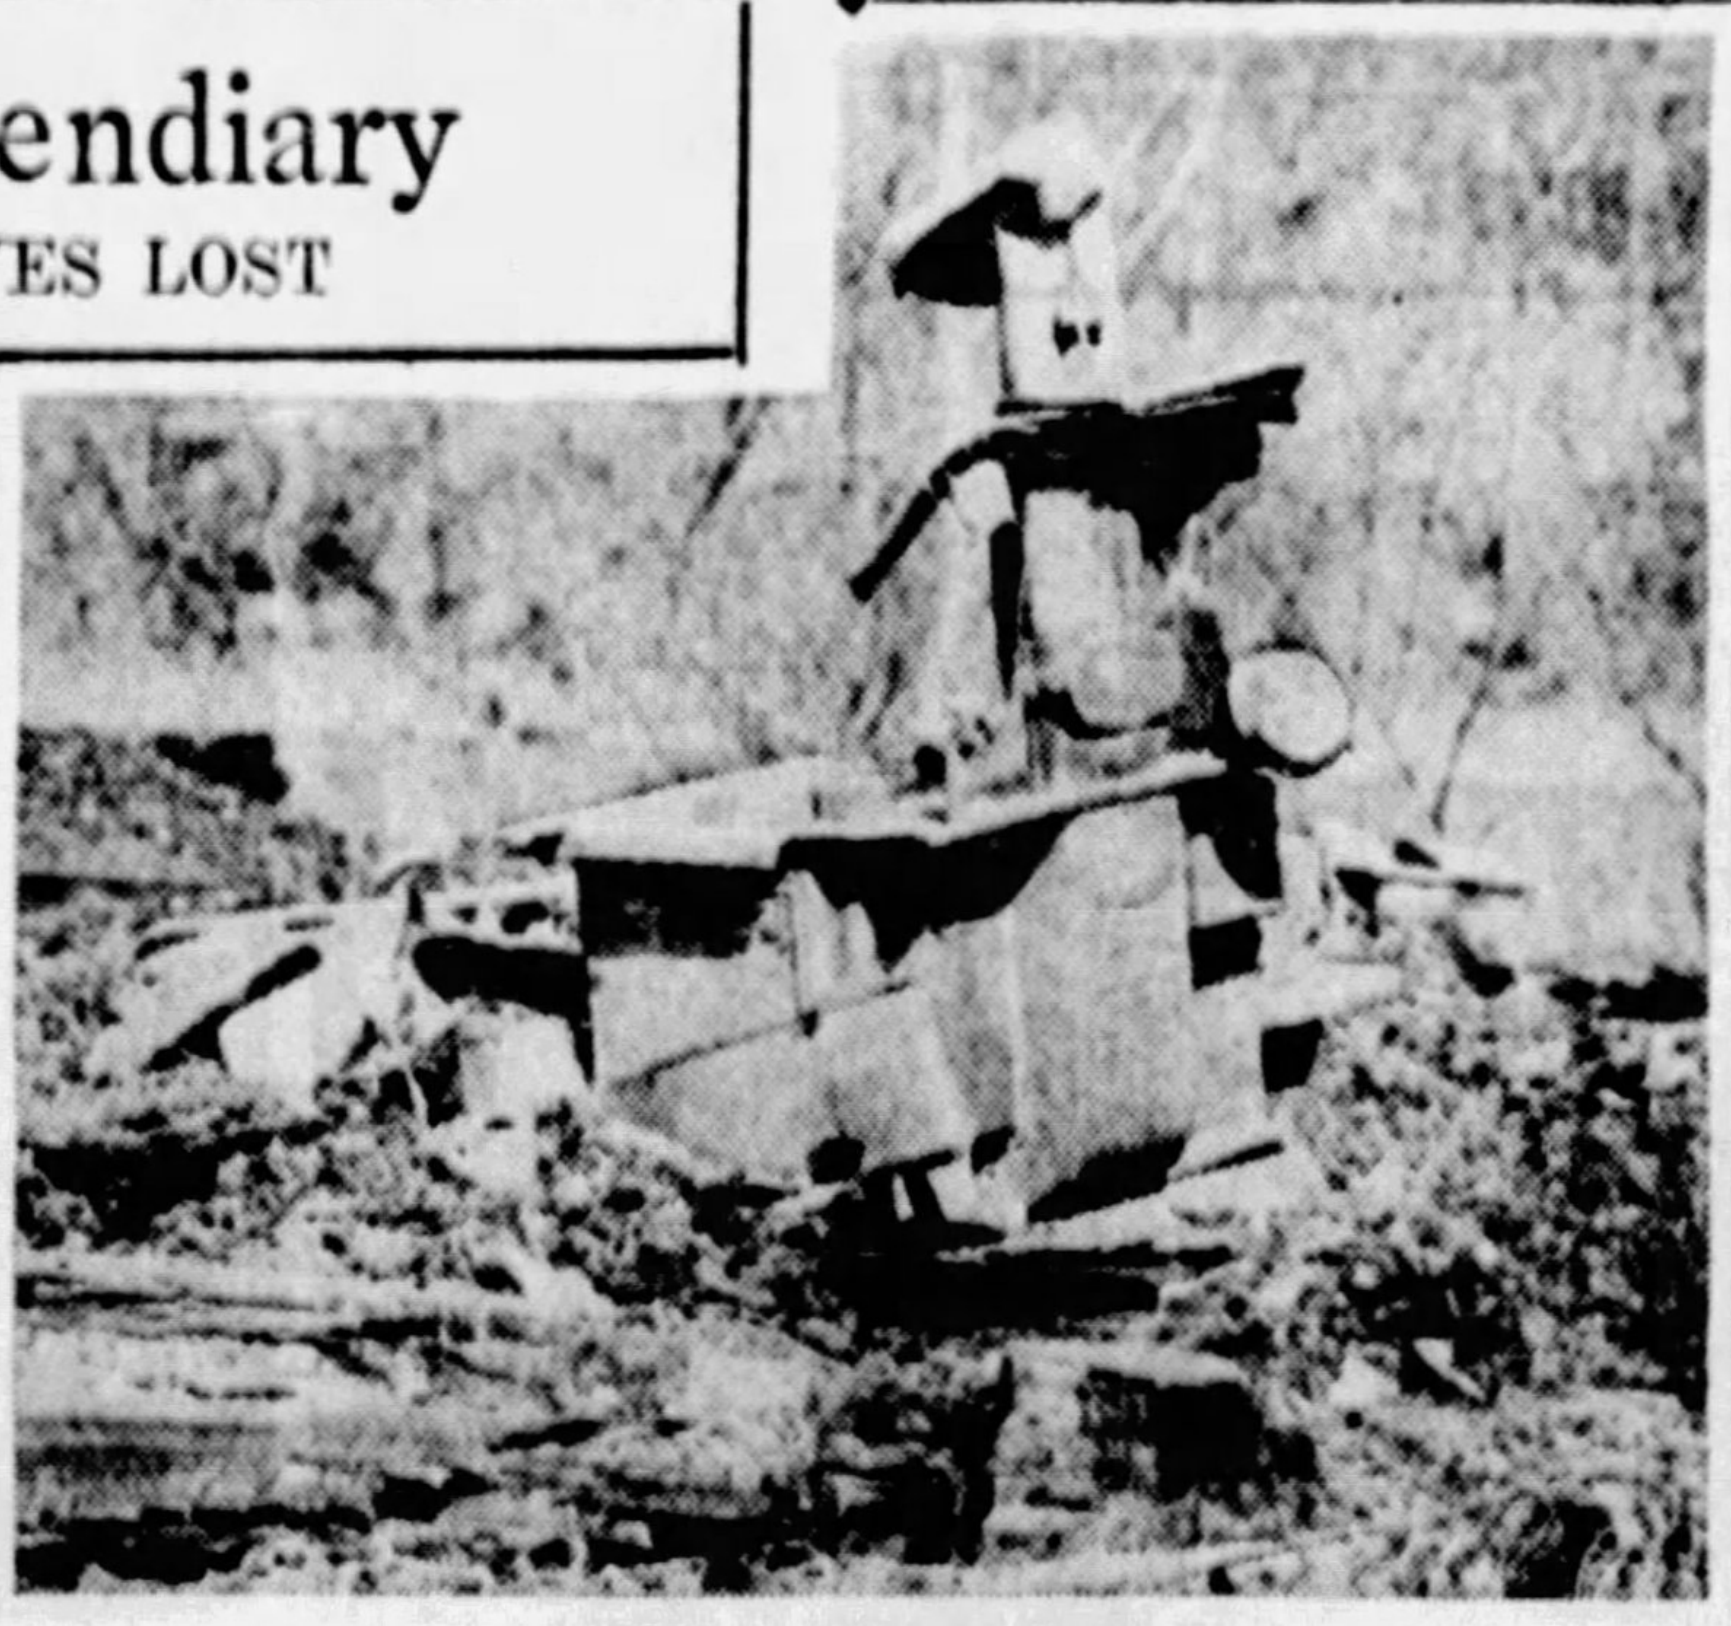
OFFICIAL BELIEF; 13 LIVES LOST

JUST WED

Annie Krepachalk, 18, and John Zerbonitz, 19, Blair Four (Pa.), died in the fire that swept their wedding [illegible] near Altoona.

INVESTIGATE

In the subsequent investigation, Coroner C. C. Rochrock (left) and District Attorney H. Gilbert, Blair county, went carefully over the spot where bodies of seven of the victims were found. The home that burned was that of Embro Krepachalk, quarryman, at Blair Four, small hamlet without fire protection.



REMAINS

Only charred ruins that have given up bodies of 13 revelers remain of the tiny home. It is believed that members of the party celebrating the wedding had retired and failed to hear Krepachalk's screams when dense smoke aroused him. The fete began with the wedding Saturday and extended over Sunday and into Monday.

INCENDIARY?

The fire may have been of incendiary origin, Coroner Rochrock (left) and Attorney Gilbert believed when they found a gasoline can, which they are shown examining, near the home. The can was purchased full of gasoline several days ago, they say, but one of Krepachalk's daughters who survived believes the fire was started by an overturned oil lamp. The investigation will continue.

LIMITED HELD UP BY LONE GUNMAN

STICKS UP TOURISTS LEAVING CHICAGO

International News Service.

CHICAGO, April 17.—A lone robber who last night held up the Overland Limited, crack train on the Northwestern lines, and robbed a dozen passengers of cash and jewelry valued at several thousands of dollars, was the object of a city-wide search today.

The robbery was staged as the train, westbound to San Francisco, pulled out of the downtown station. The robber, well groomed and dashing, had mingled with the station crowd and gained entrance to the train on pretext of bidding farewell to a friend.

As the train moved slowly out of the station, he stood on the observation car platform among a dozen passengers who were waving goodbye to friends. Scarcely had the train cleared the shed when the bandit quickly covered his face with a handkerchief and whipped out a revolver.

"All right folks, make it snappy," he commanded. "Put up your hands and be nice, and nobody will get hurt."

After relieving the passengers—several of whom were women—of the wallets and purses, and snatching whatever of value was handy, he pulled the emergency air cord, halting the train as it neared a suburban station. He then leaped from the car and disappeared in the darkness.

Prominent among those robbed were W. H. Crocker, president of the Crocker National Bank of San Francisco, and his daughter, Helen. The latter saved her jewelry, including several valuable diamonds, by hiding it in her clothing.

Crocker, who is also Republican national committeeman from California, is said to have left the train at Clinton, Ia., to telegraph his son, W. H. Crocker, at San Francisco, that he had been "robbed of $600."

CHURCHES UNITE FOR VICE DRIVE

PUSSYFOOT TO FIRE OPENING GUN

Led by the Rev. William E. (Pussyfoot) Johnson, vice crusader and ardent prohibitionist, 22 ministers of the East End and East Liberty districts in two mass meetings Sunday, April 29, will demand Mayor Charles H. Kline and police officials to come out of their "shells" and take immediate action in cleaning up the city.

The larger of the two meetings will be held in Sixth United Presbyterian Church, North Highland avenue. Twenty-one ministers have banded together, and with d[illegible] and members of their churches will attend this meeting. The Rev. Percival H. Barker, pastor of Point Breeze Presbyterian Church, will hold a separate meeting in his church, with "Pussyfoot" Johnson in the pulpit. Public Safety Director James M. Clark is an official member of this church.

The bringing of Johnson here is a surprise. It was not generally known until today that he would fire the opening gun against alleged lawlessness and vice in the city.

The Rev. Mr. Barker said today that he would not attend the meeting. He declared that he has been working hard the last six months and had decided to take a 10-day vacation.

$6,753,000 For Rivers Here

WASHINGTON, April 17.—(AP.)—Millions of dollars were set aside today by Maj. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, chief of army engineers, for rivers and harbors improvements during the year beginning July 1.

The allotments are made from a lump sum appropriation previously provided by Congress for that purpose. Projects for which money was set aside include:

Monongahela River, Pa., and W Va., $275,000; Allegheny River, open channel work, $3,000; lock and dam construction, $1,750,000; Youghiogheny River, $35,000.

Ohio River: Lock and dam construction, $4,200,000; open channel work, $390,000.

Borah Returns Purging Fund to Will

I received my $5 back from Senator Borah that I sent him to clean up five Republicans. I even named the five that he was to clean up. He wasn't able to raise the fund because people realized that it was a lost cause. You can't make the Republican party pure by nore contributions because contributions are what got it where it is today. This was a noble idea of Borah's, but noble ideas don't get anywhere. Look at Dawes' original idea of cleaning up the Senate. I doubt if he can remember even trying it now. Noble icdas don't belong in politics.

VOGEL RECEIVER CONTINUED

Telling the court that the Vogel Brothers Company, chain grocery concern, for which a receiver was appointed January 17, after George Vogel, of Avalon, one of the partners, had mysteriously disappeared, had made more than $5,000 profit, application was made for continuance of the receivership today.

Judge James H. Gray granted the petition.

Vogel, after disappearing, turned up in California, but rumors attending his disappearance had caused creditors of the company to press claims and this had resulted in the receiver being named.

COUNCIL RAPS PAVING, HIRES 'OUTSIDER'

The mayor's veto of the councilmanic resolution authorizing the employment of Hugh W. Skidmore, Chicago asphalt expert, contains "generalities that haven't a thing in the world to do with the resolution" declared Councilman P. J. McArdie, in the course of a debate that ended when council, by a unanimous vote, overrode the veto.

"The city is spending stupendous sums for street improvements and is not getting the results some of us think it should get," he continued.

WEAR OUT QUICKLY

McArdle charged that asphalt streets do not live out the five-year guarantee period and that some streets are worn to their base after having been paved less than a year.

"This is too big a question to quibble over $750, even if we had to send to the Philippines for an expert," he said. "We did not take this step until we were convinced there is no one in Pittsburgh wth the peculiar knowledge of this work necessary for such an investigation. I wrote to the mayor last week asking if he could suggest some Pittsburgher equipped to do this. As yet I have no answer from him."

VETOED 'OUTSIDERS'

Mayor Kline vetoed the resolution on the grounds that only Pittsburghers should be employed by the city.

McArdle said that he understood there were rumors that the action of council in hiring the Chicago expert is a reflection on the Bureau of Highways and Sewers.

"I don't care who it reflects upon," he said. "Anyone who wants to O. K. the work of that bureau can do so. I won't until I am convinced that better results cannot be obtained."

NEW AUTO CODE CUTS JAIL TERM

Sentenced four days before the new auto code went into effect, William C. Beattie will benefit by its provisions and have his sentence of two years reduced to three months or less, Judge Robert S. Gawthrop ordered in Superior Court.

Beattie's machine struck and killed Frances Zern in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, November 3, 1926. He was charged with second degree murder and driving while intoxicated. Convicted on the lesser charge, he was sentenced to two years, the maximum, on December 27, 1927.

He appealed and Judge Gawthrop held that as it was the intention of the Legislature in the new code to reduce the penalty to three months, Beattie should be sentenced under the new code.

INJURED ON TROLLEY, ASKS CITY PAY CLAIM

Because a load of coal was dumped through a street car window on him, Arthur Hoffman sued the city of McKeesport for $20,000 damages in Common Pleas Court yesterday. He said the pavement had been torn up to put in a sewer and that the coal truck had lurched into the hole just as the street car on which he was riding passed. His charge is that McKeesport should keep the streets in passable condition.

GRID STAR HELD FOR CHECKS

Accused in Pittsburgh of passing of bogus checks, W. C. Thomas, grid star and life guard, is being held by police at Atlantic City, it was said at the Detective Bureau here today. Extradition proceedings will be started at once.

Thomas formerly played football at Penn State, with the Frankford Yellow Jackets professional team and the Atlantic City Tornadoes. Last summer he was a life guard at Atlantic City and later came to Pittsburgh to visit friends. While here he passed worthless checks amounting to about $700, detectives said.

Prohibition agents early today stopped the car of Joseph E. Turner, 23, of 6110 Broad street, and found 13 gallons of moonshine. Turner was arrested and the auto and liquor confiscated.

Jack Laquarto, 19, of 1335 Page street, was found loading his car with liquor at 1306 Metropolitan street last night and was arrested, agents reported. They searched the house and found a still and 80 gallons of whisky.

SPEAR'S OPEN NEW STORE

NEW YORK, April 17.—Spear and Company, one of Pittsburgh's best known home furnishers, opened a new branch store in Brooklyn yesterday. This is Spear's third New York store, the others being located in Manhattan, one on Thirty-fourth street, between Fifth avenue and Broadway, the other at Sixth avenue and Sixteenth street. Situated in the heart of Brooklyn's business section at Livingston street and Hanover place, the new Spear store is easily reached from all parts of Brooklyn by train, elevated, subway and surface lines.

The new store is of an architectural type peculiarly suited to the attractive display of furniture. Great windows that make the building practically glass-inclosed, supply unusually fine lighting. The interior is finished throughout in Spanish style.

Although organized only 35 years ago, Spear and Company today is foremost among the leaders in the furniture industry. They were pioneers in the selling of home furnishings on the now universally popular plan of deferred payments. They were the first to sponsor nationally advertised merchandise. The business management has always been directly in the hands of the Spear family. In addition to its retail stores, the organization conducts a national mail order business devoted exclusively to the selling of home furnishings. Headquarters are in Pittsburgh, where the first Spear store was established in 1893. Nathaniel Spear is president of the company.

Brilliant Evening Gowns
$55.00

This is an event for women who are looking for extraordinarily effective dinner or dance dresses, at moderate cost; and for the woman who wants at least one brilliant gown for wear after 6 o'clock.

The group takes in sizes 36 to 44, although there are but one, two, three or four dresses of a kind.

Young Women Choose Coats of Silks and Velvets

For the dressy street ensemble, and for afternoon wear over dainty frocks, young women are choosing coats and wraps of moire, of the new patterned satin moire; of faille, crepe-back satin; velveteen or transparent velvet, in The Misses' Shop. The finest of these can also be worn with summer dance frocks.

The silks, in straight and cape coats and capes, are in black, middy blue, gray and beige, at $65.00 to $138.00.

The velveteens and velvets are in coats and graceful wraps, black and colors, at $29.50 to $65.00.

Come and See The Bridal Windows

They are a spring classic, telling anew the beautiful story of the Great Romantic Adventure, from the first-party and debutante days of the bride, on through scenes incident to the betrothal, the wedding, the honeymoon and "at home." They are to be seen all week, both day and evening; and from the standpoint of artistic beauty and interest, they are worth a special trip down town, to see.

"BRIDAL WEEK" Throughout the Store

That spring and summer weddings are being given special consideration here this week, is evident throughout. It is evident in the fashion sections, which, collectively, constitute a very comprehensive Appareling Service for the bride, her cortege, and for guests; and in every other department which contributes, even in the minutest way, to the success of smart weddings.

An Individual Service in Bridal Headdress

Why You Have Indigestion

How To Relieve It

When food enters your stomach, large quantities of acid-bearing gastric juice are at once secreted. If, as often happens, too much acid is present, the food soon becomes a sour, fermenting mass and may remain in the stomach several hours, causing great pain and distress.

Instant relief can be obtained in cases of this kind by taking a few Bi-nesia Tablets or a teaspoonful of the powder immediately after eating or whenever pain is felt. This quickly, safely and surely neutralizes excess acid, stops the fermentation, soothes and heals the inflamed stomach lining and at once restores painless, normal digestion. Get a 50 cent package of Bi-nesia—either tablets or powder—from any druggist today, use as directed and you can laugh at digestion troubles.

What a wonderful opportunity for thousands of families to save a great deal of money! From our own experience, we know that by giving Extraordinary Values during these three days we are going to obtain an extraordinary volume of business. Not alone are we repricing to lower levels hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of seasonable merchandise from regular stocks—but unusually favorable market conditions made it possible for us to accumulate merchandise at cut prices to be included in this sale.

THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH

'Twas a Noisy "Night in Spain," But a Police Dog Lent Humor And Miss Stanley Sang Well

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

THEY called it "A Night in Spain"—and perhaps the Charleston is named after Don Carlos—and the combs and shawls do give it a certain Castilian atmosphere—but it might as well be any other noisy place, that Revue which returned to the Alvin Theater last night, with Aileen Stanley singing sentimental ballads about "a pig, some hens and a cow," and Ted Healy cracking some jokes rough enough to cause the aforesaid animals to look the other way.

GEORGE SEIBEL

To tell the truth about "A Night in Spain," it suffers sadly from a lack of ideas and in some scenes from a lack of clothes. Ted Healy is often funny, but hardly ever refined. What do you expect in Spain, the land of tamales and tarantellas? A word must be said for the Police Dog who contributes some of the most humorous moments of the evening. He looked weary and worn—even a police dog has his feelings. But he deserves unstinted praise for real comedy—and here's hoping that some one will read these lines to him.

Besides the police dog, there are other good things in the Revue. For instance, there is Babby Pinkus with his india rubber legs, and Tito Coral with a fine voice and a romantic presence, and a delightful dance by Cortez and Peggy, and a colorful jungle dance called the Bambazoola. But the high climax of every humorous scene is to tear off somebody's clothes, or to administer a kick to a lady instead of a chair. There is a Moorish danse a ventre which even the appreciative audience hesitated to applaud, and there is a notable deficiency of lingerie in some of the tableaux.

Aileen Stanley's sentimental ballads help to make it all go down, for she has a sweet voice and an appealing style. The glittering scene at Isabella's Court also redeemed the first act of the Revue. But as a whole it has rather too much paprika for a refined taste, and the ideas are too thinly sprinkled amid the racket and blaze of it all. With a great crowd of people on the stage, there are comparatively few that do anything noteworthy—in fact, the police dog really takes the biscuit! And he wasn't Spanish!

LON CHANEY TURNS GOOD IN PENN PHOTOPLAY

Lon Chaney, who first attracted attention in "The Miracle Man" as a crook who turned to the tamer and better life, makes the same kind of a transformation in "The Big City," a photoplay of the underworld being shown on the screen of the Penn. This time the influence is that of an innocent girl, so unsophisticated that her artlessness gets the police on his track after he has successfully turned the tables on a gang holding up a night club and has taken the loot himself. When she is arrested in a raid on the cabaret he runs as a blind for his crooked operations and innocently upholds his character to the police, his gratitude causes him to "come clean" and to follow the straight path. Along with him he takes his "moll," none other than Betty Compson, who also was converted with him in the "Miracle Man," and James Murray, his pupil and disciple in gangland. Chaney plays his part with malevolence that does not contrast too sharply with his later characterization of a diamond in the rough. Marcelline Day is appealing as the innocent lass. On the stage "Hey, Hey" features the Gibson Sisters, very good dancers, and Jack Powell, whose drumsticks are veritable magic wands. Frank DeVoe's jests and songs, with Eddie Willis at the piano, are liked. There are 12 dancing girls also and a spectacular finish against a background of revolving pillars of mirrors. There also are musical and other screen attractions.

Funster

TED HEALY
Mr. Healy is the principal comedian of "A Night in Spain," elaborate revue which is the attraction for the week in the Alvin.

HARRIS OFFERS SONG ACTS

Ada Brown, Negro comedienne, is on the Harris stage with her repertoire of syncopated songs. She amuses with her real estate papa and vamp of New Orleans numbers. She wins the most applause when she touches the sentimental note of the mammy theme with "Cobblestones, Lead Me the Way to My Home." The actress met with an accident Saturday and she appears on the stage in a wheel chair. The Record Boys, phonograph and radio entertainers, are another feature. This trio of young men unload harmony and win applause. The vaudeville opens with the White Brothers, in a rough and tumble acrobatic act. Marty and Nancy follow with an assortment of steps. "Vanity Fair," among other things, offers a comedy trio that registers, and a young woman sings about knowing her A, B, C's. Her knowledge fails to excite the audience. A novelty presentation is offered by Gibson and Price. The photoplay, "Skinner's Big Idea," is quite an entertaining comedy. It tells the story of how the junior partner of a big jobbing firm rejuvenates three old employes. The usual short film entertainment is on the bill.

"THE FIRST AUTO" OLYMPIC PHOTOPLAY

"The First Auto" is the current photoplay in the Olympic. It has to do with the passing of Old Dobbin and the coming of the motor car. Many oldtime types of automobiles are seen. Patsy Ruth Miller portrays the heroine. Featured in the cast is Barney Oldfield. There is a Vitaphone accompaniment with the picture. The regular Vitaphone program offers a vaudeville playlet and Leon Vavara in a program of jazz and classical tunes. News pictures are shown.

"IS MAN A MACHINE?" SUBJECT FOR DEBATERS

Clarence Darrow, Chicago criminal lawyer, and the Rev. J. H. Snowden, prominent Pittsburgh minister, are to debate the topic, "Is Man a Machine?" Mr. Darrow takes the affirmative side and Dr. Snowden the negative and the event is scheduled for Wednesday evening, April 18, in Carnegie Music Hall. Frank C. Harper will act as chairman.

"The Clutching Claw" Gives Pitt Audience Many Thrills And Laughs as Spook Drama

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"THE CLUTCHING CLAW," presented last night in the Pitt, opening the second week of the George Sharp Players in that theater, is a mystery play. It gave the large audience some of the spookiest moments the theater has presented this season. It also gave those present plenty of amusement and numerous occasions for laughter. As it is a mystery play, the review of it necessarily must be more or less covered with a veil also, since the players really put a reviewer on his honor not to reveal too much about the entertainment lest those who go may have their pleasure spoiled. That is the usual custom with plays of the kind. There always is a little note at the end of the program asking everybody to keep the secret.

Last night nobody in the audience, perhaps, could have told what the secret was right up until the last few minutes of the action. Suffice it to say there are a couple of murders and a ghost and spooky noises here and there and mysterious warnings to everybody. Also there is a regular stage detective and a newspaper man who solves the mystery and puts the detective in his proper place as bungler. In plays they always do that. The playwright there shows his wisdom. What chance would his play have of getting a good review if he didn't show up the newspaper reporter as superior to the police department when it comes to straightening out crimes? No chance at all, let a newspaper man assure you.

"The Clutching Claw" deceives one quite completely. We are so used to having the detective or somebody else connected with solving the puzzle turn out to be the guilty party that it is really quite disappointing to find that such is not the case in the play in the Pitt. It is presumed that much can be told without violating the confidence the program places in the reviewer. But I will not go any further, for fear that a clue may be let slip and if you go to see the play you will become concerned with so many clues that even a false one might get you on the right track. Then where would be the pleasant surprise for you at the end of the show? So that's all about the play itself, except to say that it is up to the average of its type and much better than some.

All of the players act their parts with much skill. Ralph Morgan is the admirable Crichton type of newspaper man to a T and Anne Forrest has a weepy evening of it as the leading feminine character. Gus Forbes is the typical stage detective, bederbied, blustering and wearing square-toed shoes. Mabel Kroman also has much weeping to do and does it quite effectively. Louise Gerard Huntington is realistic as a witch type of elderly woman and Edwin Vail plays with much artistry a servant who sneaks about the house. Gordon Anderson and Matthew Smith, Jr., also do what is required of them adequately.

LLOYD'S "SPEEDY" IN GRAND SECOND WEEK

Harold Lloyd's laugh piece, "Speedy," opened a second week's engagement in the Grand yesterday. The comedian appears as a soda fountain clerk, taxicab driver and "chaufeur" of an old horse car. Short film features are on the bill.

ELEPHANTS PERFORM IN SHERIDAN SQUARE

There is a bit of circus atmosphere to the vaudeville show which opened a three-day engagement in the Sheridan Square. It is offered by Adelaide Nelson's troupe of performing elephants. Frankson amazingly manipulates lighted cigarets. Lehr and Bell, sing and chatter. Tabor and Greene, "The Two Dark Oaks," have a musical act. Then there's Lamb's Manikins, a miniature stage and a group of mechanical toys. The photoplay is "Domestic Troubles," with Clyde Cook and Louise Fazenda. Short screen entertainment and an organlogue complete the bill.

"WINGS," AIR PICTURE, HELD OVER IN NIXON

"Wings," the impressive photoplay of war and aviation, was received with enthusiasm again last night, when it opened its second week in the Nixon. The picture features the youthful and talented trio—Charles Rogers, Richard Arlen and Clara Bow.

Gaylord Yost, violinist, and Earl Mitihell, pianist, gave a recital in Carnegie Lecture Hall last evening, that was unique in Pittsburgh musical history, and quite important as such. The program was devoted entirely to three sonatas of Brahms, representing three distinct periods in that composer's life, and displaying the great German as a romantic, a classicist and sometimes as a mathematical and tiresome writer.

We should have more such recitals, for only then can we come to true appraisal of a composer's merits.

Of the ensemble we might say it has fine possibilities. Gaylord Yost is a pioneer and we can rely on him to present interesting music always. His style is for chamber music, but must become more individual in sonata playing than when he plays with the more colorful quartet.

We know Earl Mitchell as an accompanist par excellence. We have watched him for many years, and know no other who enters so heartily into his music, nor who has given better music when he has played second to soloist. He too, as a player of sonatas, now becomes of equal importance with what the audience believes to me the leading instrument, and must assert himself accordingly.

This was his first appearance as ensemble player. Very noticeable was his marked ability to speak a really eloquent phrase, but also a tendency to obscure the outlines of themes that in Brahms are so distinctly outlined. Each player seemed afraid to outplay the other.

In the first sonata I should question the tempi; the restraint became dullness. In the second, however, both players gave best account of themselves, while in the third I believe Brahms was slightly to blame for our restlessness.

Candy and tobacco valued at $10 was stolen from the restaurant of Henry Mitchell at 116 Oakland avenue. A rear window had been forced.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

THIS AGE WE LIVE IN

LONG honeymoons are becoming less and less popular; they are so apt to run right into the divorce, these speedy days.

We talk more about love nowadays, and know less about it, discuss it more seriously, and treat it more lightly, than in any age since the world began.

* * *

The best way to celebrate your marriage, after a few years, is to forget it—and pretend that you are still in love with each other.

HELEN ROWLAND

Alas, life lasts such a little while! It is like a drifting cloud, the flight of birds, a flash, the contents of your weekly pay envelope, a modern man's love!

If any woman actually looked like the drawings in the fashion magazine or the figurines in the shop windows, she would rush right to a beauty surgeon and have herself reshaped.

Bachelors no longer get much thrill out of life. It has reached a point where a man has to be married to one woman in order to extract any kick out of making love to another.

An unhappy marriage is the poison gas which chokes out all a man's ambitions; but it takes the morphia of a happy marriage to deaden a woman's pep and lull her aspirations to sleep.

The Age of Discretion is that at which a woman's "symptoms," her weight and her diet list absorb and excite her more than the thought of any man's kiss.

* * *

"Get your man"—and then watch the others line up at the box office!

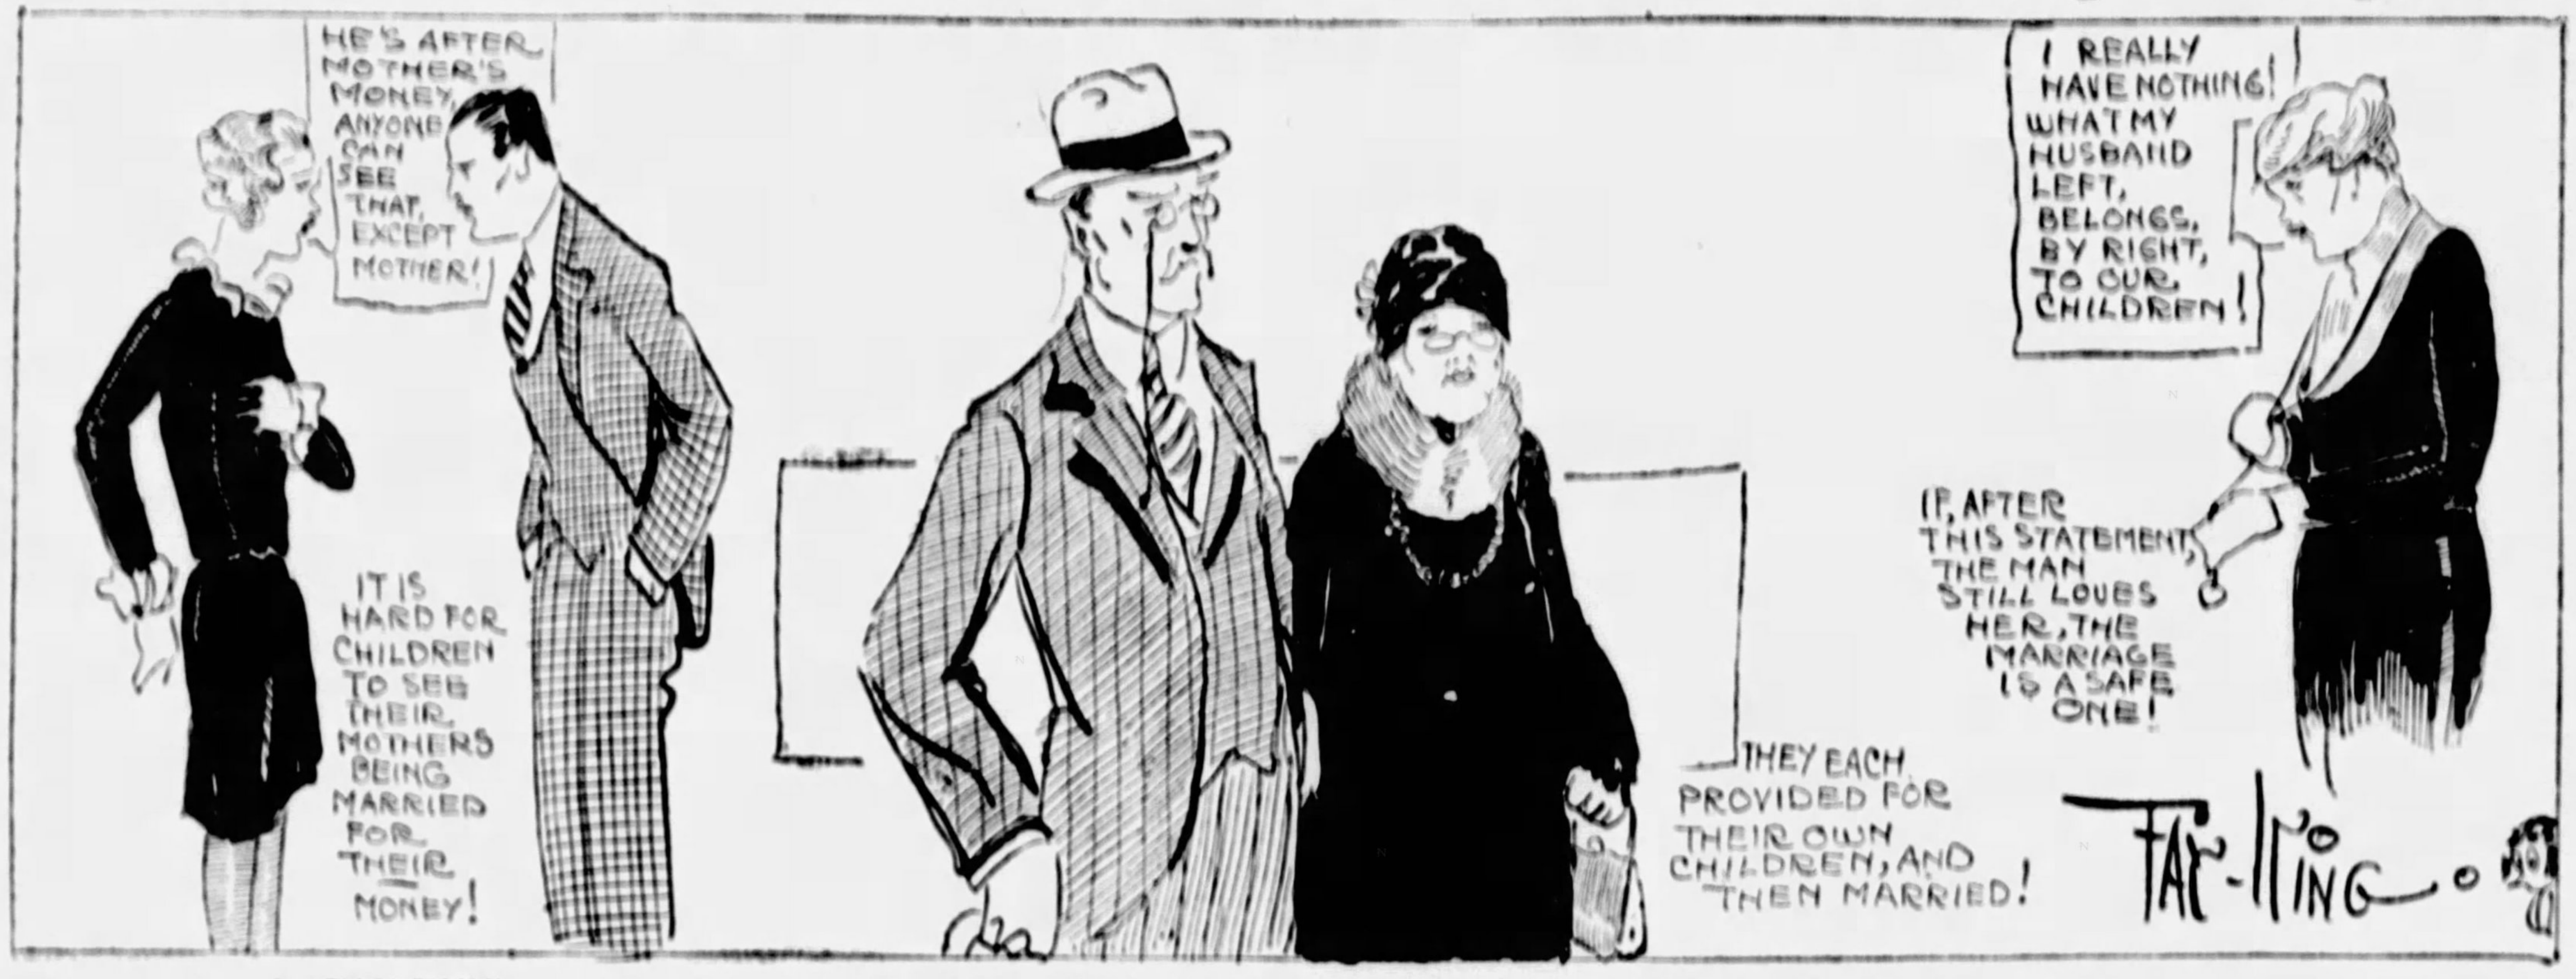
Widows With Money, Just Listen to Fay King



HE'S AFTER MOTHER'S MONEY, ANYONE CAN SEE THAT, EXCEPT MOTHER!
IT IS HARD FOR CHILDREN TO SEE THEIR MOTHERS BEING MARRIED FOR THEIR MONEY!
THEY EACH PROVIDED FOR THEIR OWN CHILDREN, AND THEN MARRIED!
I REALLY HAVE NOTHING! WHAT MY HUSBAND LEFT, BELONGS, BY RIGHT, TO OUR CHILDREN!
IF, AFTER THIS STATEMENT, THE MAN STILL LOVES HER, THE MARRIAGE IS A SAFE ONE!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING.

MANY middle-aged persons who married young and raised families, through death find themselves quite lonely in the world. They would like to marry again.

Having known a happy marriage, they miss the congenial companionship and happy home life that was theirs.

There is no reason why, if they meet the right one, they should not marry again.

But they must be very careful to see they are not falling victim to some scheming person who is really more interested in the worldly goods their former mates left.

Very rich men who expect to leave large fortunes are careful to leave fool-proof wills! They arrange with banks to handle their estates and fix it so that the fortune cannot be gypped away from their heirs.

But many men who leave modest fortunes do not think it worth such careful pre-arrangement.

Many widows with a tidy inheritance that would provide well for them are often won and robbed by scheming husbands.

It is very hard for children to sit by and see a parent so imposed upon.

The children of the first marriage are entitled to consideration, also. For what their father has accumulated should be theirs after their mother has been provided for.

An ideal second marriage can only be such when both have provided for their own children and then marry each other for love and companionship.

Many a widow will not find her new suitor so eager, if he is sure that he cannot borrow or use the money her first husband left to her!

When money is mentioned, it is well to be beware!

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Wednesday, April 18

Life is not a goblet to be drained; it is a measure to be filled.—HUDLEY.

THE stellar operations for this day point to many lively and unforeseen occurrences and situations affecting the personal as well as business life. All affairs are under high stimulus, possibly due to a commotion which may cause a change of environment and associations. Although the element of surprise or of the unconventional may be uppermost pleasant and happy conditions rule.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of unexpected events and situations, with change in home environment and associates. A great urge of spirit of enterprise may lead to this and bring about unusual and unplanned predicaments. These may be happy and lead to unforeseen satisfaction.

A child born on this day will be enterprising, aggressive and fond of change. It will succeed in employment and have much inclination to social pleasures and will be active in domestic, social and romantic employments.

Cherry Pudding

Boil a cupful of rice in a pint of milk, adding a tablespoonful of butter and a tablespoonful of maple sugar cut in pieces. Add a saltspoonful of salt and cook gently, covered, for 10 minutes then uncover and cook down nearly dry. Open a can of large cherries, drain, then stone them, put on a layer of rice, then a layer of cherries, and so on, until all are used in a well-buttered pudding dish. Then melt two tablespoonfuls of the maple sugar in the cherry juice, thicken slightly with a little cornstarch dissolved in a little water and pour over the pudding and bake as usual.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland, M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

Fruit Essential to the Ideal Breakfast

NOT long ago I sat at dinner next to the Secretary of the Navy. We got to talking about the diet of the sailor boys. Observing my interest in the subject, the Secretary sent me a copy of the breakfast menu, together with the quantities of food consumed and the cost of one meal for the entire Navy and Marine Corps.

DR COPELAND

Next time you see an estimate of where the money goes that we appropriate for the Navy, you will know how a lot of it is spent. For a single breakfast there are required 18,834 dozen eggs, or 13.49 tons, and of other foods, 52.96 tons, a total of 66.45 tons. The total cost for the one meal is $19,563.16, an estimated cost for each man of 17.32 cents.

On September 19, 1927, upon which the figures are based, the menu was as follows:

Oatmeal, with milk and sugar—two ounces of cereal and an ounce of milk.

Ham and eggs—two eggs and three ounces of meat.

Fried potatoes—three ounces.

Bread—four ounces.

Butter—one-half ounce.

Coffee—one-half ounce and an ounce of sugar for the cereal and coffee.

Men in the Navy are pretty active. Much of their work is real work. On this account energy-producing foods are required. The standard meal provides them.

I am frank to say I would like to see the first course changed to fruit. At least it would be better for persons in civil life, who are more sedentary in their habits, to reduce the carbohydrates a bit.

One fault I have to find with the average breakfast is that it contains excessive quantities of fats, sugar and starches. The cereal is largely starch. To this you add cream and sugar.

The egg, bacon, breadstuffs, syrup or marmalade and potatoes belong to the same food group. In consequence, the fuel foods are in excess, unless you are doing hard manual labor and require them.

The Navy food program is pretty good, although I still think fruit, fresh or stewed, should begin the meal. But "the test of the pudding is in the eating," and the low sickness rate of the Navy is an evidence that the men thrive on the "grub."

I was pleased to note the enthusiasm of Secretary Wilbur over the hopes and plans of his organization. The men in command are thinking always of ways and means to improve the physical welfare of the officers and men of that impotrant branch of our national defense.

Answers to Health Queries

E. Q. Q.—I am 16 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall and weigh 117 pounds. Am I underweight? How can I gain in weight?

A.—You are three pounds underweight. To gain in weight I would suggest that you eat your meals at regular hours. Add to your diet milk, cream, fresh eggs, plenty of green vegetables, fresh and stewed fruit. Make sure that your kidneys and bowels eliminate properly. Avoid excessive use of tea and coffee. Drink two or three glasses of water between meals. Exercise freely in the fresh air and practice deep breathing. Sleep as many hours as possible in a well-ventilated room. Avoid fatigue, worry and irregular habits. A good tonic would prove helpful.

For the Lovelorn

By ELEANOR GALE

Broken-Hearted Z

DEAR MISS GALE:

As a constant reader of your column, I feel justified in asking for a bit of advice. Some time ago I met a young man who attracted me very much. I was introduced to him at a dance, but he shows no interest in me whatsoever. I have seen him several times since at dances, but he only asked me for a couple of dances and seemed so unconcerned. He scarcely notices me when he meets me on the street. I am not a bad-looking girl, and I am sure he does not detest my looks. Please tell me how I can gain his friendship.

BROKEN-HEARTED Z.

If the young man is so completely indifferent, as you say, there is really nothing you can do to win his interest. Any attempt on your part would seem like "running after him" to the boy, and the result would be just the opposite from your intention. Be friendly, but not too friendly, when you see him.

Mary Lou

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a young girl of 22. My sister and I live together. We are orphans. We both work in offices as stenographers. My sister is 20. When mother died she told me to take care of my sister, but she is stubborn and insists upon having her own way. She accepts strange men's offers for car rides, she adores night life and all sorts of wild life. Please tell me how to get her to do the right things before she finds her ruination in them.

MARY LOU.

You are facing the same problem I do continually, my dear, excepting that mine is multiplied many times. I, too, try to point out to the girls who write to me that a life of petting and drinking is wrong and foolish. But even those who seek such advice refuse frequently to listen to it, just as your sister does. Try, as I do, to discuss it from a reasonable point of view. That is about all you can do.

Wondering

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a reader of your column and appreciate it very much. Now I would like some advice. I am 18 years of age and am a private secretary to a business man aged 40. I am very much in love with this man, although I did not think of love until he told me how madly he loves me. Now, this man has a very nice wife and children. Do you think he loves me? Or does he just tell me that so that I will allow him to make love to me? Now, I am forced to leave his office. Would it be all right for me to meet and have dates with him, even though he is married, or should I give him up? He never mentions marriage—just love. Do you think he loves me?

"WONDERING."

This man is a cad, to make love to a young girl in his office. He is just playing with you, my dear, so forget him. Don't, by any means, make dates with him. Of course he never mentions marriage. He wants a comfortable home and a girl's friendship, too.

SPOTTY CAPERS IN DAVIS

If it were not for the dextrous hat-throwing of Garcinetti and Miller, which opens the vaudeville bill in the Davis Theater this week, and the graceful dancing of Moss and Fontana, which closes it, there would not be much to say about this part of the entertainment. As it is, the less one says about Renie Riano's sketch, enacted in a "Love School," the better. As an exhibition of poor taste, it is quite the limit. After that, Jack McLallan's solo on a jewsharp and the poetry read from a locked volume by his partner, Sarah, were a welcome relief, and Mr. McLallan's roller-skate dance on a table was really remarkable. Reed and Lucey have a farcical act of song and piano, with several highly amusing numbers. Stanley, Owens and Howe, are a trio with good voices, but not much substance to their songs. Indeed, if it were not for Marjorie Moss and the hat-throwing act, the vaudeville part of the bill would call for soap to cleanse, and starch to strengthen it. The film play, "Under the Tonto Rim," is a typical Zane Grey thriller, with Richard Arlen and Mary Brian in the leading roles. "Topics of the Day" also prove exceptionally interesting.

UNDERWORLD PICTURE ON SCREEN IN STANLEY

The suave and polished gangster and his underworld activities are the basis of action in "Dressed To Kill," photoplay on the screen of the Stanley. It has a moral, as all photoplays do, but "Dressed To Kill" parades its moral as a finale instead of leaving to be inferred by the spectators. The moral is the dictum of orderly society to crookdom—"you can't get away with it." As a moral lesson it is interesting but as a photoplay entertainment it is not thrilling nor deeply moving emotionally. Edmund Lowe gives an excellent characterization of the cool gangster of steely nerves who uses his brains and wears good clothes, playing his part most convincingly. Mary Astor is the girl who gets into his good graces and turns his own crowd against him. The finale sees her on her way to free her falsely imprisoned sweetheart and him meeting the fate of a traitor to the underworld, paid by the gang, who in turn pay the state, proving to the crook "you can't get away with it." The stage feature "In Granada," presents the Cansinos, Spanish dancers who know their fandangoes, Chaz Chase, comic, and the dancing senoritas, a group of stepping girls. The orchestral contribution, arranged and conducted by Phil Spitalny, is "A Musical Comedy Cocktail." A fable, comedy and other screen features complete the bill.

BUCK, BUBBLES IN ALDINE

Negro talent, in the persons of Buck and Bubbles, climax the vaudeville show in the Aldine this week. The lanky boy sings a bit and shows a lot of speed with his feet. The little fellow tickles the ivories into harmony and clowns about the keyboard. And between times the pair of them manage some laugh-getting patter. Following this act comes Paul Tisen and his orchestra, a talented organization of five or so stringed musicians. Walter Watters and partner show some originality in an amusing ventriloquial act. Marge Coates sings a peppy group of songs. The Aerial Smiths, opening the stage show, display skill high in the air. The photoplay is "Surrender," featuring Mary Philbin. Mary is seen as a Galician peasant girl, who falls in love with a Russian prince, portrayed by Ivan Mosjukine. The picture has a war theme and lots of weepy moments for Mary. But it has that "they-lived-happily-ever-after" atmosphere at the final fade-out. M-G-M News pictures are among other short film attractions.

HIGHLAND COMEDIAN HEADS ACADEMY SHOW

Ray Read, who is appearing with his company of burlesquers in "Speed Girls" in the Academy, specializes in Scotch impersonations and songs. Nellie Nice, sings songs including syncopated numbers. Annabelle LaMorris and Edna Thayer entertain with specialties Among the sketches are "Tee for Four," "Music Hath Charms," "A Day in Spain" and "The Women in Lavender." In the latter there is an elaborate display of costumes. Billy McCarthy, Teddy Witzell, and Harry Seyon help in comedy scenes. The chorus appeared in speedy dancing numbers. The show is presented with appropriate scenic embellishment.

Morocco Leather Floor Cushions

A French artist and architect noted the low floor cushions used by the Arabs and had some made large enough to be practical for Europeans.

The idea was seized on the Continent—Moroccan floor cushions were shown at the Exposition des Arts Decoratifs in Paris. And now, McCreery's present them to Pittsburgh.

They are of the beautiful leathers for which Morocco is famous, affecting glorious combinations of colors in motifs particularly appropriate for new modernistic settings.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Sewickley Girls Plan to Make Bow During "Little Season" to Be Observed in Early Summer

OUR sister cities in the East and, of course, London, have had so-called "little seasons" in the late spring and early summer for many years, and now, it seems, we, too, are going to have some social activity to share honors with the June weddings. At least Sewickley is. I understand that three or four, perhaps more, girls from the Valley will "come out" during June instead of waiting until fall, when the social calendar is always crowded to overflowing.

This is not an absolute novelty here, to be sure, but the June debuts have been very few. Senator and Mrs. David Aiken Reed brought out their daughter, Rosamond, now Mrs. Charles Denby, Jr., here in June several years ago, following her Washington debut, and another summer debutante was Elizabeth Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clifton Jenkins, of Morewood avenue, who came out two years ago in June.

Among the Sewickley debutantes this summer will be Virginia Willock, who will be introduced at the Allegheny Country Club on June 29 by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scott Willock, of Academy avenue. Virginia attended the Farmington School, but this past winter she has been a pupil at the French School in New York.

As I have said here before, the next few weeks will see quite a number of benefit parties, ranging from bridges to theatrical performances. The latest to be added to the list is a bridge luncheon which the social service committee of the Homeopathic Hospital is going to give on April 25 in the Longvue Country Club. Mrs. James J. Turner, Jr., is in general charge of the affair and with her assistant chairmen, Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Mrs. William S. McKinney, Jr., Mrs. J. Sidney Hammond and Helen Murdoch, is working hard to make it a success. Mrs. Hammond is chairman of the board with Mrs. William Howard Nimick, Jr., as vice chairmen; Mrs. Frank M. Everson, secretary, and Mrs. William F. Bickel, treasurer.

I understand that F. F. Rockwell, the well known eastern landscape architect, is going to talk to members of the Garden Club of Allegheny County on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon in Fifth avenue. These women are keenly interested in surrounding their homes with beautiful gardens and grounds and Mr. Rockwell's topic "Making Things Grow," will attract many members. A tea will, of course, follow the talk.

* * *

Travelers are still returning home from the South or West, and among them are the William A. Herrons, of Kentucky avenue, who spent several months in Cuba. On their way home they stopped in Augusta and Charleston. Mr. and Mrs. Omar Scott Decker, of Amberson avenue, are in Washington for a few weeks on their way home from Orlando where they spent the winter. And Mrs. Wilfred D. Chester and her sister, Helen Smith, will be back in Sewickley on Thursday after being in California and Honolulu for the past two months. Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Jr., and the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander are back from Palm Beach, too, and have opened their summer home, Franklin Farms, in Sewickley Heights.

* * *

Mrs. William Irvine Parry and her daughter, Sarah, of Sewickley, are getting back home today, I hear, after spending the past 10 days in Philadelphia. They went East to attend the wedding of Jane Levis Carter, daughter of the Henry Levis Carters, and George Edward Ernshaw, Jr., son of Mrs. George Edward Ernshaw, of Over Creek Farm, West Chester, Pa., which took place last Wednesday in St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Wayne, Pa.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hommel, of Douglas avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Alice Hommel, to Jay Klein, of Joplin, Mo. Mr. and Mrs. Hommel will be at home Sunday night from 8 to 11 o'clock in honor of the engagement.

A number of Smith College alumnae, appointed by Elizabeth Dierks, general chairman for the benefit performance of Walter Hampden in "Caponsacchi," to be given April 24 in the Alvin Theater, will make and pack several hundred pounds of candy and have it ready to sell at the benefit. Mrs. Joseph H. Bowman is chairman of the candy committee.

Sewickley alumnae who are helping in arranging the benefit are Martha Byrnes, Priscilla Brown, Mrs. Frank G. Darlington, Jr., Eleanor Gilchrist, Mrs. F. B. Hufnagel, Mrs. Donald Simons, Isabel Wisner, Mrs. James West Arrott III, Marguerite Booth, Maud Munson, Agnes Murray, Mrs. David McConnell and Susan Nevin.

The marriage of Miss Margaret M. Walton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Walton, of Ellsworth avenue, and Howard J. Selig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest T. Selig, of Harrisburg, was solemnized Saturday at noon in the Walton home by the Rev. E. M. McFadden. Only the families and a few friends were in attendance. After an Eastern trip Mr. and Mrs. Selig will live in Harrisburg.

* * *

Mrs. G. W. Zimmerman, of Victoria avenue, New Kensington, and her daughter, Mrs. A. G. Larson, of Wilkinsburg, entertained with a bridge luncheon Saturday to announce the engagement of another daughter, Miss Bertha Zimmerman, to H. H. Brodmerkel, of Philadelphia. An early fall wedding is planned.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Hilleman, of Beechwood boulevard, have made known the marriage of their son, Paul R. Hilleman, Jr., and Miss Ann Pechstein, of Maryland avenue, which was solemnized Saturday in the East End Christian Church by the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers. A breakfast in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Hilleman are motoring in the East, and after May 15 will be at home in Alderson street.

* * *

The dance of the Carrick Cotillion Club, scheduled for tonight at the Southern Country Club, has been postponed.

MISS ANNA E. GILKESON

Miss Anna E. Gilkeson, daughter of Harvey Gilkeson, Seminole Hills, Mt. Lebanon, has returned to Indiana Teachers' College after the Easter vacation.

BELLEVUE OUTLOOK CLUB CHARMS WITH MUSICALE

A program of rare charm marked the musical and tea which the Bellevue Outlook Club gave yesterday afternoon in the Congress of Clubs. To open and close there were duets beautifully sung by Mrs. Elverton H. Wicks and Mrs. Walter E. Close. Then there were soprano solos by Mrs. Close and some of those delightful readings which she does so well. This clever little woman shows a surprising increase in histrionism, and her humor and sentiment are both rich and moving. Mrs. Mildred Hoch Fage was accompanist for both songs and readings. Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, Congress president, dropped in for a few minutes and had a word of welcome for the club members and their guests. Mrs. C. R. Davison and her social committee were in charge of the afternoon. The tea table was centered with a cluster of marguerites and the small tables around which the guests were seated bore bud vases of marguerites or jonquils.

Dr. George H. Wirt, of Harrisburg, chief of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Forest Protection, substituted for Dr. Joseph S. Illich before the Woman's Club of Wilkinsburg yesterday afternoon. In the South Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Dr. Wirt gave an illustrated lecture on forests, explaining the difference between devastation and utilization. Forestry does not mean that the trees must be saved, but that they must be used and replaced, he said. In the wild flower poster contest conducted by the bird and forestry committee of the club, prizes were awarded to the following public school students: Alton Kline, Louise Furgison, Eleanor Humphreys, John Duxbury, John Wesley Logan, James Galbraith, Joseph Suter, Dorothy Bailey and Louise Owens.

Mrs. Marie Tello Phillips, Mrs. Lillie Reed McMasters and Mrs. Galen C. Hartman, all of Pittsburgh, but delegates from the Miami branch of the League of American Pen Women to the national convention in Washington, returned home this morning, having remained over at the close of the convention to attend a luncheon and reception in honor of the new president, Mrs. Clarence M. Busch, of Miami. All three Pittsburghers took a prominent part in the convention activities, Mrs. Phillips having made the seconding speech to Mrs. Busch's nomination. Each took part in the poetry program, the poetry luncheon and dinner and in the poetry contest Mrs. McMaster's work, "A Tapestry," won honorable mention in Class A. Mrs. Phillips was also on the forum program.

Dormont New Century Club will close its season with the annual luncheon to be held in Kaufmann's auditorium, Friday, April 27, at 1 o'clock. Replies are to be made to Mrs. H. H. Harsh, social committee chairman.

For the benefit of their summer camp, "Sandy Lake," at Stoneboro, members of the Pittsburgh Girls' Club will give a play, "Sandy Lake Revue," in Fifth Avenue High School tomorrow night, under the auspices of the vacation camp committee.

Edward John Moreton Drax Plunkett, Lord Dunsany, paid a visit to Pittsburgh yesterday and gave an author's reading before the Twentieth Century Club yesterday morning. The distinguished Irish playwright chose his play, "If," for the hour's reading.

* * *

Soprano solos by Mrs. J. A. Davis, accompanied by Miss Ruth Simon, and piano solos by Mrs. George B. Ewart formed the musical portion of yesterday's program before the Pittsburgh Literary and Musical Club, while the papers were given by Miss Laura Cluly and Miss Lillian O. Sprague.

$750,000 FOR CLINIC GIVEN PITT

FALKS DONATE BIG SUM FOR DISPENSARY

A $750,000 gift in the form of a modern medical clinic and dispensary has been presented to the University of Pittsburgh by Maurice and Leon Falk, local Jewish philanthropists.

Announcement of the presentation was made late yesterday by Chancellor John G. Bowman following a meeting of the trustees of the University.

The dispensary which will be erected and in operation within 15 months will be a part of the projected Medical Center of the university. It will front on Fifth avenue at Lothrop street. One unit of the center, the Children's hospital is already functioning.

TREAT 750 DAILY

The dispensary will have facilities for the free treatment daily of 750 persons. Designed primarily to relieve suffering, in addition it will help the university train doctors, advance clinical investigations and medical research, and will seek to co-operate in social welfare.

In a lecture hall, capable of seating approximately 1,000 persons, weekly talks on public health matters will be given, free to the public. The room will be placed at the disposal of all social agencies as a clearing house of their activities in promotion of public health. Here social workers may meet frequently and large conventions relating to their activities may be held. Through its offer of co-operation to all social agencies the widest possible utility will be sought for the Falk Clinic and Dispensary.

FOR LARGE DISTRICT

"The donors have established a noble and enduring service, not only for the people of Pittsburgh, but for all Western Pennsylvania," Chancellor Bowman declared. "The sick will come there, experience teaches from a radius of many miles. The dispensary will help not only the hospitals of the medical center group—the Presbyterian, the Children's and the Eye and Ear, but will stand ready to co-operate with all other hospitals.

Maurice and Leon Falk have long been leaders in Pittsburgh business and manufacturing. They have been associated with the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies since its inception and are trustees of this organization which corelates the charitable work of 17 social agencies. The philanthropies of the Falks for many years have embraced a wide range of non-sectarian humanitarian and educational causes.

Are You One of Those Women?

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Certain women are sufficiently interesting in appearance to cause people to look twice. The secret is an outstanding smartness.

Always such a person appears perfectly groomed but the methods of acquiring this stamp are quiet and unobtrusive.

Edna Wallace Hopper as she looks today

Here is one of the important ways: Use a powder that blends with your skin so smoothly that it looks a part of you. I have found this powder in France. Formerly it was made for my personal use only. Now you you can buy it at your own toilet counter. The price is $1. It comes in a square box. Ask for Edna Wallace Hopper's Heavy Face Powder.

For certain skins which do not require as clinging a type I have what I call my Light Face Powder, which comes in a round box at a lower price.

Both types, in Flesh, Brunette, White.

TRADER HORN

The Greatest Adventure Story of Modern Times

Medicine Men on Ogowe River Who Cured Leprosy

Bark and Bug Treatment for Gunshot Wounds—Trader Horn's Thumb Thus Saved

What Has Gone Before

Alfred Aloysius Horn, wire seller, 73 years old, lives in a Johannesburg lodging house, where he is writing the story of his boyhood adventures. Once a week he brings the manuscript to Mrs. Ethelreda Lewis, the South African novelist. He has told of how he went out from St. Edward's College, Liverpool, at 18, to learn the ivory and rubber trade in West Africa. There he is stationed at a store in Gaboon, where his instructor is an old native, Chief Ritiga. He develops an admiration for the medical powers of Pipi, a native healer.

Reminiscences of Dickens

By ALFRED ALOYSIUS HORN.
Edited by ETHELREDA LEWIS.
CHAPTER III.

ONE of the most interesting natives of the Gaboon was old man Pipi, brother of Chief Ritiga. He was a great hunter and also chief medicine man, and had some of the most wonderful cures. There were many diseases that the natives were subject to. One was a species of heart disease and Pipi had a sure cure for it. If not attended to in a reasonable time it was fatal. A pain through the body in the region of the heart was a sure indication of this terrible malady.

Pipi would press the painful spot with his finger and watch closely after the finger was released; once he felt sure of the location he drew from a small scabbard made of skin an instrument like a flat bamboo needle; this he inserted two or three inches deep between the ribs he had selected, always piercing from the side, right or left as the case might be. The operation was so skillfully conducted that the patient showed little or no signs of pain, was cured instantaneously to stay cured.

The old man also told me of the wonderful medicine men I should meet later on when I went trading on the Ogowe River. The Inilles he said were wonderful doctors. This I found to be true. Natives who had leprosy went there to be cured. I knew one Gaboon chief who was afflicted with this disease. I met him two or three years later in the Inili, which is situated on the south bank of the Ogowe, about 50 miles up, and is said to be a famous place for the cure of leprosy. He looked all right to me and I complimented him on his good luck in going there.

Bark and Bug Cures

White doctors I found out have a lot to learn about these diseases, and it has often occurred to me that some efficient man would confer a great benefit on humanity if he would only risk a little time in research on the wild river Ogowe. I was cured of bad gunshot wounds and spear wounds by these natives, no white medical man being available at the time. I can show you my first wound on the left hand.

As I had hold of the top of the native's gun at the time, and it went off, I received a wound which pretty nearly tore off the thumb. This was cured by hot bark emulsions, and the wound was filled with the white of a cricket. Like a cockroach trod underfoot, the white of the stomach comes out on pressure.

Worm in the leg is another disease which I have seen cured. This worm inhabits the leg between foot and knee. The Ojanga finds the head by carefully examining for a small swelling; this is lanced or cut carefully.

The head of the worm is then secured between two pieces of soft, pithy wood and is turned once and the wood nipping the head of the worm is then securely tied by making a turn of the wood each day. With the head part of the worm secured the patient gradually loses the worm.

As each tribe has a cure for the diseases most prevalent amongst them the cures are quite numerous. Dysentery is cured by enima of a pepper (called togolo). The water vine which contains at all times pure cold water with a very agreeable taste will be found healthy at all times and will be found in the glades along the lakes and rivers.

This is always used by gorillas and chimpanzees and where it is found you will find their homes. The wild myondo or onion like a shalotte is also readily eaten by gorillas young or old. Natives declare this biggest of all apes will not live without it. Wild coffee, also a species of sugar cane and a species of red banana are found. The coffee is first class and is used in Gaboon.

(Here Trader Horn stops to chat with Mrs. Lewis, who has set down his conversation just as it came.)

Recalling Dickens

"I've been doing a bit for the doctors this time that'll provide an interesting novelty. Aye, I'm a humanitarian and that's why I like to remember the medicines. A certain modicum of medical knowledge should be in every man's make-up. George Bussey knew his materia medica or he couldn't have reported the passing of the anti-vivisection bill in a readable manner. George Bussey, the friend of Dickens. They went through Poverty Square together, if anybody did. Aye, they sure took rooms there for a time, and 't wa'n't on the first floor either. Dickens, and a lot of other fellers like that.

Why, they'd go to Day and Martin's blacking factory and gum labels on the bottles for two and six a night, working right through till the small hours. Bussey lived at Albany Road, Camberwell, in his better days. But when he was fighting for a footing in London, before he became of Master of Hansard, he and Dickens' come across many a day when they'd have to keep away from the Old Portugal in the Strand.

"Too many fellers they knew there and they hadn't got the money for the drinks. They'd walk all the way to the old fox under the hill at Dulwich to get a cheaper drink and a bit of bread and cheese by themselves. He was a good feller to me, was George. Aye, he'd a big heart for the young. And

RACETRACK STAR DIES IN SPILL

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 17.—(AP.)—Orville Bourassa, nationally known jockey, was fatally injured this morning when a broken saddle girth threw him from his mount onto the fence in a workout.

Bourassa was taking Julia H. for an early workout and just as they reached the four-furlong post the saddle girth broke. The rider was thrown against the fence, his head striking the top of an upright post. He died within an hour after the accident.

Bourassa, a 27-year-old French-Canadian, has been riding about six years and had been in many feature races, including his mount on Fair Star two years ago in the Pimlico Futurity. He was married and his wife, living in Baltimore, was summoned to the hospital, but did not arrive until after he died.

PROHIBITION AGENTS RAID 3 CLUBS

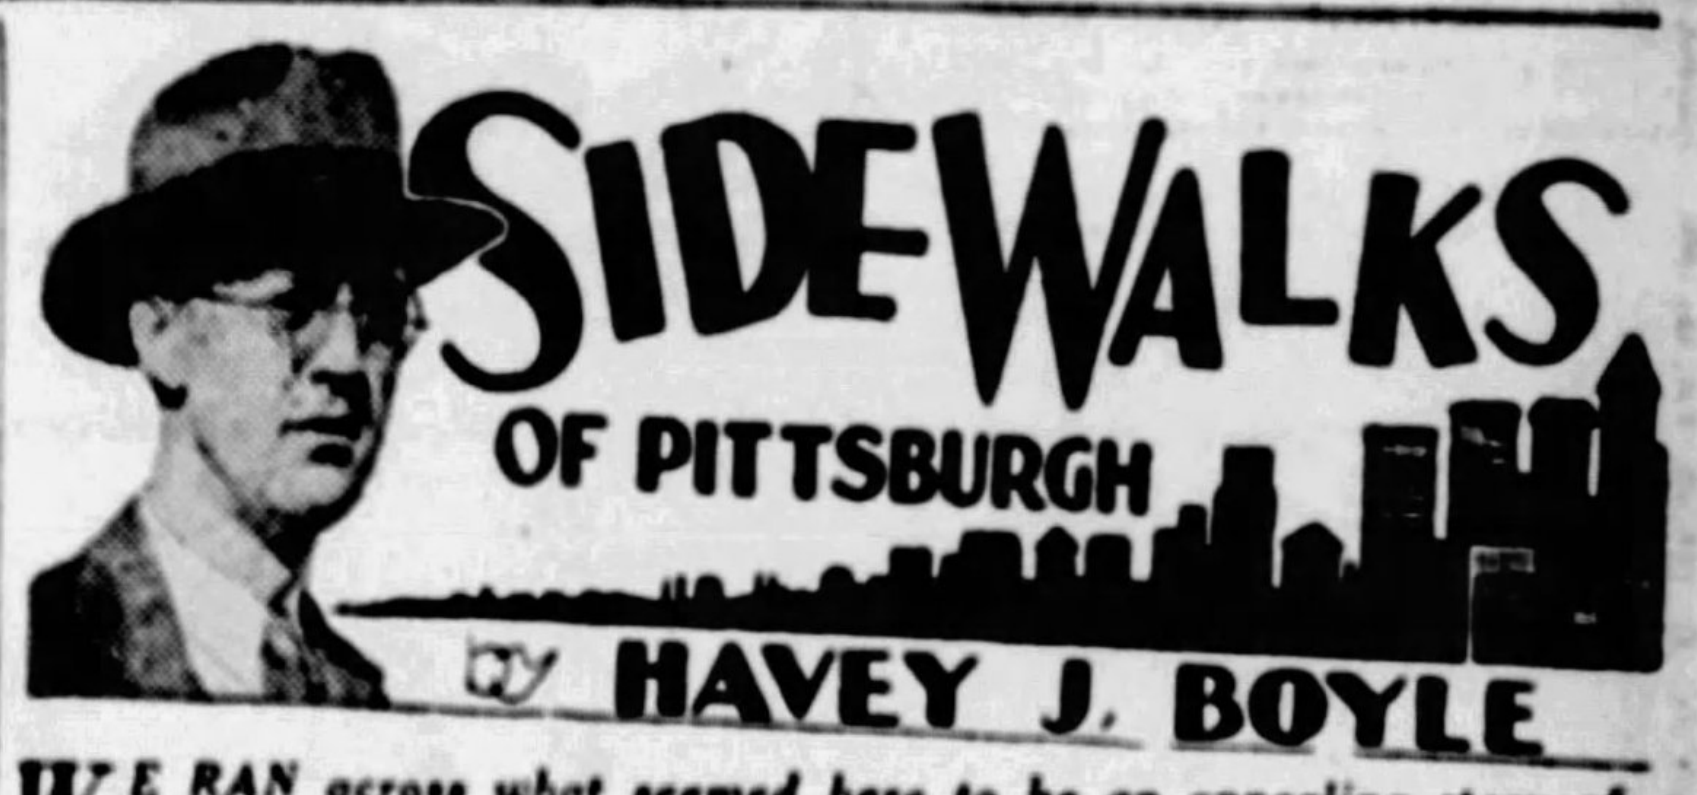
Merriment turned to dismay in three Pittsburgh clubs last night when prohibitio agents entered and unceremoniously conducted raids. One of the establishments raided was the Optimus Social Club, 1126 Brabec street, where, agents say, John Hosek, Jr., and John J. Urbanek were optimistically serving drinks. Both were arrested. The club's quarters yielded about 15 gallons of whisky, according to agents.

The Oakley Club, 904 Vinial street, and a saloon and club at 28 Graeme street, were the other places visited. F. J. Steinment and W. W. Seitz, both of 904 Vinial street, were arrested in the raid at that address, and A. R. McCarty of Aidyl avenue, Charles Strelch of Fernwood street and Charles Grossman of Dunloe avenue were taken into custody at the Graeme street club.

Twenty-five gallons of whisky, a gallon of gin and five quarts of wine were confiscated at Vinial street and three gallons of whisky, two barrels of beer and two quarts of gin were seized at the Graeme street plac, agents said.

This Pair Expect to Cleanup; Take Vacuum Cleaner

When two young men to whom Mrs. E. E. Tannery, of 4516 Forbes street, had rented a room left last night, she discovered that an electric carpet sweeper, valued at $60 was missing. Less bulky—and less valuable—articles in the men's room had not been disturbed. The young men rented the room last week.



SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

WE RAN across what seemed here to be an appealing story of a Civil War episode, with a Pittsburgh connection, and a sequel that was at least unusual. Here is the story and the sequel:

* * *

CAPT. DAVID SHIELDS, one of the best-known men in the Pittsburgh district, tells it to a friend who relays it to here. In a certain engagement a group of Confederate sharpshooters were playing havoc with the Federals who sought to rout them from a farmhouse. Capt. Shields was in charge of the Federal detachment.

VARIOUS kinds of strategy to rout the Rebels had failed with a loss of Union life, when a young Irishman respectfully approached his captain and volunteered to reach the farmhouse and set fire to it. He had just that devil-may-care look in his eye that promoted confidence in his daring enterprise.

* * *

HE REACHED his objective and accomplished his aim. On his way back to his own lines, the young Irishman found himself the target for a peppering fire from the desperate Confederates who intended to avenge themselves on this bold young man who had set the stage for their capture or death.

* * *

BUT the young man apparently bore a charmed life for he crawled and scrambled safely on his way, with death lurking at every move. Enthralled, his comrades watched him making his way back. He then astounded all watchers by stopping in his dash for safety to pluck a flower from the field he was moving through. The purpose of this doughty gesture was revealed after he had made his way back to safety. He presented the flower to Capt. Shields as a souvenir of his exploit.

* * *

THE sequel to the story occurred some years later in Pittsburgh, long after the young Irishman had died. Capt. Shields still had the flower. Learning that a fairly famous actor was the son of the gallant young Irishman, Capt. Shields, when the actor in question came to Pittsburgh, called on him. He told the actor the story of the father's exploit and tendered him the cherished souvenir. Believe it or not, the actor wasn't even mildly excited about the flower or the story. Which will seem incomprehensible to most men and women. A strange sequel to a glorious adventure story.

THERE comes to this desk the story of a Pittsburgh family which is related to George Bernard Shaw, the famous author. With the Pittsburgh family Mr. Shaw communicates regularly and some day, if at all possible, we are going to ask that some of Mr. Shaw's letters be made public. When he touches pen to paper it is impossible for him to be dull. The sort of letters he would write to relatives "in the states" should make good reading.

* * *

IN THIS connection, somewhat, there is also the story that a brother of Henry L. Mencken works for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company here. Casual inquiry failed to develop his whereabouts, and a search of the rosters of the Chamber of Commerce, the local Rotary club, and the Kiwanis club failed to show Mr. Mencken's brother is a member, which in a way is a pity.

* * *

THERE is an invitation here to attend the luncheon of the Poison Shooters' Club which will meet next Saturday at noon in the Union Restaurant. The object of the meeting, the invitation says, is to see that nothing important is accomplished. Which sounds very entertaining.

14,000 DOGS TO BE SEIZED IN CITY ROUND-UP

ATTACKS BRING DRASTIC WAR ON CANINES

Every unlicensed or unleashed dog is doomed.

Starting today, a special squad of four men, known as the "Dog Collecting Squad," working under direct orders from Public Safety Director James M. Clark, began a roundup of the canines. The Animal Rescue League is working in co-operation with the police.

Dogs licensed or unlicensed not on a leash, will be taken in the net.

This action follows the attacks on a number of persons by dogs throughout the city.

The penalty for permitting dogs to run at large is a fine not to exceed $100 or imprisonment not to exceed three months. "We have instructed the collectors to pick up every dog in the city where a violation occurs," the director said.

In the city there are 10,500 dogs licensed. Unlicensed, according to the city treasurer, there are 14,000.

The cleanup is the most drastic since the state dog law was passed in 1917. Council supported the act and passed an ordinance January 31, 1918.

Trader Horn

what I know of literary procedure comes from him. . . .

"Aye. That Old Portugal was always a great house for newspaper men, poets, betting men and so on. 'Tis an axiom of nature for all men who live on their wits to gather together. Fellers that like every day to have a different flavour.

"I thought you'd like these notes on medicine, your husband being a scientist will sure appreciate it. I've always had a bit of soft spot for men of science. Got the taste when I was on the Coast.

"Dredging party came along in a nice little vessel all fitted up for wrestling with the secrets of the cep. What is it that feller Byron said? 'Ten thousand fleets sweep over thee in vain.' Grandiose stuff, but it never stood in the way of fellers like those I met on the Ivory Coast when I was a lad. Scientific gentlemen with nets and spirits o' wine and what not. The head of them was one of the Professors of Science. Nice party of fellers, though. Very interested in Nature they seemed.

'Twas like talking to children to answer all their questions.

"I could tell 'em a bit about some of the lakes I'd been o., where you can see to the bottom same as peering into a dew-drop. 'Twas a pleasure to hobnob with such a party. Drawing so much life from Nature myself, it sure made me understand their ways.

Josh House Goddess

"There's a simplicity comes from the worship of Nature, same as from goodness. That poor missionary lady . . . Innocent as a child she was . . . 'Why, Mr. Horn,' she says, 'what's the matter? Isn't God here just the same as in America?' 'Twas when we were walking through a cannibal village. They'd never seen a white woman before. The only one within a thousand miles was Nina T— that was goddess in a Josh House. Did you know I'm blood brother to Nina T—? Yes, by the rite of Egbo, ma'am . . . Not that she was lady fair although her father was an Englishman. Her mother was an octoroon from Princess Island. But English blood'll battle through. Nina's hair was auburn. Dark auburn. And her skin was pale. No darker than many a beauty in London.

"I must be going, ma'am. I must buy a bit of wire on the way out and be selling again in the morning. Tuesday's a better day than Monday for selling stuff that's not wanted."

Copyright, 1927, by Ethelreda Lewis; 1928, by Metropolitan Newspaper Service.)

(Tomorrow: Trader Horn writes of his trip to the most dangerous spot on the West Africa coast and gives his impression when he first set eyes on Nina T—, the goddess to the Isorga.)

"$10 for Wives" Cult Head to Fight Ban

Twenty-four hours in which to leave town is no way to treat the "Grand Governor" of the Moorish Holy Temple, 1709 Arcena street, cogitates T. Crumby Bey, who today, instead of traveling back to Morocco, is in the city, having retained the services of an attorney who will fight a police court edict ordering him to leave.

The order to leave was pronounced by Magistrate John W. Orie yesterday after reports had been received that a plank in the religious offerings of the temple included wives at $10 each. Liquid known to the congregation as "medicine" also was seized, it was testified. The medicine was a liniment, T. Crumby Bey said. In addition to the exalted title he has as pastor he also carries the designation of "Sheik" along with almost four score other members of the congregation.

HOW good they taste! Crispy, crunchy Heinz Rice Flakes with a delicate, appetizing flavor like that of golden-brown nutmeats. Everybody likes Heinz Rice Flakes right from the start.

And that's only the beginning. As the days slip by, folks notice how much better, keener, happier, they feel. Because Heinz Rice Flakes help Nature keep you "fit as a fiddle"—full of the "Joy of Living".

How? By a special Heinz process in cereal-making the flakes are naturally "laxatized" through the use of the natural roughage of the rice itself. This imparts to Heinz Rice Flakes the qualities of a gentle, natural laxative.

Let the whole family have them regularly for breakfast—and enjoy the fun of good health.

PITTSBURGHERS FLEE FIRE AT ATLANTIC CITY

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. April 17.—(AP.)—Two Pittsburghers were among the guests at the Iroquois Hotel, South Carolina avenue, near the Beach, when the hotel was partially destroyed by fire early yesterday. One man is known to have lost his life and several other bodies are believed to be in the ruins. The loss is estimated at $200,000.

The Pittsburghers are Joseph Berkey and Mrs. A. E. Higgins, it was said last night when a check-up was made by R. L. Queen, manager of the hotel. Mr. Queen discredits the belief that others might have died in the blaze, as he said that all of the 58 guests registered had either reached safety themselves or had been rescued by police or firemen.

The dead man is C. K. Koewcegs of Brooklyn. Several persons were injured in jumping from windows and others suffered burns in running through the flame-swept halls. Three firemen were injured by falling walls. A defective flue is believed to have caused the fire.

SIXTEEN ARRESTED IN E. DIAMOND ST. RAID

Sixteen men were arrested early this morning in a raid on an alleged speakeasy in East Diamond street, North Side. Joseph Diaugelio, 29, and Richard Shuddon, 26, were charged with keeping a disorderly house and the others with being visitors. Capt. Anthony Block, who led the raiding squad, reported finding whisky and wine.

It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time, and furthermore, if one bottle of Emerald Oil does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

HAD BLACK SPOTS BEFORE HIS EYES

Local Man Claims Ten Herbs Ended Liver, Stomach and Bowel Disorders.

"My liver was sluggish and I had no pep," was the statement of Mr. Russell Patterson, 2029 DeRaud Street, Pittsburgh, to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating the great natural medicine, Ten Herbs.

MR. RUSSELL PATTERSON

"I would get dizzy at times and see black specks in front of my eyes," continued Mr. Patterson, who is an electrician.

"I was troubled with constipation, and had to take purgatives. My kidneys seemed to be out of order, as my feet would swell, and I had pains in my back. My stomach was weak. Food did not digest as it should, but formed gas. I felt so tired that I wanted to lie down all the time, and never felt like rising in the morning. I had headaches every day, and my nerves were unstrung.

"A neighbor advised me to try Ten Herbs. The second bottle made a wonderful improvement in my condition. I enjoy my meals now without having gas on my stomach. The pains have left my back, and I have no more headaches or dizzy spells. I sleep soundly, and my bowels are regular without the use of purgatives. My feel do not swell, and my nerves never trouble me. I recommend Ten Herbs to the public as a wonderful medicine."

Wherever Ten Herbs has been introduced it has met with tremendous success. Thousands in this city are using and recommending this new herbal compound for disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. It also benefits the kidneys, and gives the whole system a thorough cleansing. Ten Herbs is a modern medicine for many ills caused by the hustle and bustle of the times. It has helped others and why not you?

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free samples given.

Stephanie's Great Surprise. She Takes a Few Steps For Jerry and Heinie

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Jerry King, good looking, charming and nineteen, falls in love with Saxon Rhodes, a young architect. Marza, her fascinating mother, warns her that idealists like Saxon make poor husbands. When he goes abroad to study, Jerry promises to wait for him. Jerry agrees to wait three years longer. She wonders whether Saxon loves her as completely as she loves him. Saxon's attention to Ora Pringle gives Jerry a pang of jealousy. They attend a week end party where things start to happen. She decides to give Saxon up. She discovers that Marza has another daughter of whose existence her husband had ben ignorant. Stephanie, Marza's daughter who was very ill, recovers and they go back home and Jerry finds life one trial after another with Saxon. Mary Eunice is to back Saxon to win in a contest. Jerry is jealous. Saxon tells Jerry he is paying his own way and once more she believes in him. Stephanie's operation is a success and the doctor is sure that she will walk.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"SHE will soon take a few steps. But she must go very gradually. In two months she will be able to walk about the house fairly well.

"By the first of next year she may be able to take a job. She must not rush."

"Oh," said Jerry tightly and with her breath bounding. "She thought she would be going to dances and climbing mountains in the summer time."

"I'll be satisfied if she is doing this a year from the summer. After she tries herself out, she'll be glad to rest. She'll want to rest often. You and your mother can easily influence her to patience. She's a great little fighter and is coming out on top, I'm sure."

"Oh, thank you," said Jerry, giving the doctor a vague smile and feeling very chokey. "We're so grateful to you."

"And to Saint Stephen?"

Jerry laughed: "Stephanie was raised in a convent. She makes novenas and has miracles granted. It's awfully convenient having God for your servant like that!"

. . . .

Jerry got off the car on the top of the Hyde street hill. At the corner of Greenwich she paused and looked down to the bay. The ferryboats were great golden mammoths with a hundred yellow eyes. They went stealing on a thousand silent feet through the waters.

A year or more! This long before Stephanie was free—entirely free.

"I stick close and keep the home fires burning since such is such!"

She had it all figured out now. On the car riding from the hospital she made mental calculations, going over her sums nervously again and again. After the interest and taxes and other expenses were paid there would be about $150 from the apartments. Her job guaranteed $150 more. So they'd have $300.

Oh, that should be enough for three dazzling dames! Not so ritzy, of course, if the three apartments all got vacant at once. They'd certainly take to dieting then! But the whole place hadn't been vacant in 15 years. Not likely to happen now.

Suddenly she said: "I'll be 24! Ye gods, I'll be 21!" This seemed old—almost as old and tragic as to be 44 and still waiting for life to begin.

She would be 24—a worker—a fighter. Supporting herself—helping to make the way easy for her sister.

And this career had been trust upon her and was so different from the gaudy, insolent future that the Jerry of 19 had visioned. Oh, then she was to have cut a wide, blazing trail across the hearts of men—a high, adventurous path across mad, stormy seas. Pirate-hearted, with naught but heaven and the lowest hell to make her bounds!

Well—she was in to this other and would stick. After all, it was an adventure—making something tall and fine from nothing! Making a real person of herself!

Yet now she thought stealthily: "A year from now! I wonder what he'll be doing then—if he'll grow or dwindle?"

He would keep on being friends with her—dropping in late in the afternoon to the shop—chatting—trying a little flirtation. Giving himself and his evenings to Mary Eunice.

She wondered how deeply Mary attracted him? How long Mary would hold him? Until she was solved. That long only.

Mary was still a mystery. There was still the unknown quantity . . . still the suspense of the chase perhaps.

"But with me," thought Jerry, very philosophic, "the book is open. He knows just what he can and just what he can't. And for a man, when he is playing this game, a woman lasts only until her score is known. The known is never the beguiling."

She thought of Sylvia's red-hot advice and smiled. She had to go now the way she was going—she had to be what it was in her to be—win or lose with that. Even if it meant loveless for life. . . .

She was recompensed—she would have been recompensed for whole years of toil and drab, flameless days by that single singeing moment. She opened the door of Stephanie's room. She and Heinie entered together.

Stephanie was standing at the bed. Stephanie put out her hand and with a mad, singing little laugh murmured: "I timed it right. Miss Olive watched your coming. We timed it to the dot!"

CHAPTER LIII.

STEPHANIE took measured, nervous steps, face and eyes brightly flushed. "It's as easy—as easy—" she said breathless and seizing Jerry's outstretched hands.

She rested against Jerry's shoulder and laughed in a merry, elfin way at Heinie.

"Marza saw me walking yesterday. But I wouldn't let her tell you. Surprised, aren't you, Jerry? You've never seen me on my feet before."

"Why, you're so little, Steve. Why, I had no idea. Only to my shoulder." Jerry kissed her and hid her face adroitly in Stephanie's thick hair.

She felt pale and trembling with disappointment. Despite the doctor's warning, she had no idea the steps would be so halting, so frightened.

When Miss Olive, after this brief essay, ordered Stephanie back to bed, she obeyed readily, gladly—looking very worn and white. A sick terror went clutching to Jerry's heart, making her foolishly tender; foolishly, maternally apprehensive.

She leaned down to Stephanie and twitted her: "You're shaking, Stevie dear. You're like a baby and frightened."

"You would, too, if your trusty pins hadn't hit the sod for nearly ten months. You wait! A few weeks of practice and I'll dance the Black Bottom from here to the top of Twin Peaks."

She reached a small, gay hand to Heinie. He took it and pressed it warmly: "Done bravely, little kid."

"And you'll take me to a very swift party and ply me with liquor, Heinie? Seven cocktails one right after the other? Think of it, nearly 20 and never been tite!"

Early in June they brought Stephanie home. Marza was rejuvenated. She was radiant as Jerry remembered her in the red dress and flashing smile.

She sat at the fire these chill, foggy evenings and listened with dreamy smile as Robert Caples played to her; as Flo Arnold and Boris Ivanevitch argued. Or she came and sat beside Stephanie's couch, smiling at her—chatting to her.

"She's living her love all over again," thought Jerry, watching her. "She fancies Stephen near and watching and glad. What a comfort the human trust in immortality is, after all!"

Stephanie was exultant, greedily absorbing gaiety and cynicism; flippance and philosophy; responding eagerly to the whole vagabond atmosphere.

In the afternoon Sylvia dropped in. Times were slack for her, so she decided to paint Stephanie's portrait. To the unbounded delight of the model.

Heinie came. He brought books and candy and every beguiling toy he could find. Often Jerry would find him sitting at Stephanie's feet; would see his fine, earnest eyes lighted with gladness as Stephanie ran her hand through his disorderly hair and told him merrily: "What a comfort of a borrowed lover you've turned out to be! I wonder if my own, if I should ever acquire one, will be half as satisfactory and delightful?"

Stephanie said this and grew pale. She covered with a winning: "I greatly doubt it. I'm afraid you've spoiled me for love, Heinie."

"She loves him. She knows it," thought Jerry, smiling. "How blind a good, honest heart like Heinie's is!"

One evening Jerry and Stephanie were alone.

"Quite like a grave, isn't it? Is is just a gift that Marza has, bringing all these richly-colored people about her? No wonder, Jerry, that you've an exotic fragrance absorbing this brightness since your infancy."

"But a quiet evening is restful, isn't it?"

"Yes, gives you time to ponder all the dribble."

"You're taking quite a number of ponderings lately, aren't you?"

"By way of telling me my glory's on the wane?"

"No! But I've wondered. Jerry, is it all off between you and Saxon?"

"Yes," said Jerry, surprised at the flat, quiet word voicing so thundering a lie. "It's all off!"

"You didn't grieve at all, did you?"

"Nor take to my bed and die a la Camille! It's not being done today, Steve! Only females of the 100 per cent mid-Victorian variety—little ladies made of sugar and spice and everything nice and imagining themselves and their woes of world importance go into mourning for a vanished love.

"You've got to be sheer, unmitigated woman stuff—egotistic, devoid of humor and perspective before you can take to a dark corner and weep because of a busted heart. What is a heart but a hunk of tissue, anyway?

"Steve," she went on, blocking the chance of interruption, "tragedy is leaving the world. It's following God and religion out of existence. The more we realize our own unimportance the farther heaven vanishes and the less demand for a hell.

Dicky, Prepared to Ride With Eleanor, Angered by Delay of Breakfast

LONG after Lillian left me I pondered her parting shaft that the only way to deal with the Dicky-Bird was to make him realize the time-worn saw about the goose and the gander."

My common sense told me that she was absolutely right in her dictum. But something deep within me rebelled at the idea of appearing to use Philip Veritzen's rather embarrassing attentions to me as a weapon of reprisal against my husband.

I reminded myself grimly, however, that my hands were tied. Without throwing up my contract and ruining the brilliant future which seemed opening up before me, I could not trust Philip Veritzen with rudeness or escape the wholly innocuous if rather disconcerting attentions which my employer proffered me.

I drifted off to troubled sleep without coming to any decision in the matter, rose in the morning with the same uncertainty hovering over me. But when I had dressed and gone downstairs, to find Dicky fuming on the veranda, my uncertainty ceased abruptly and my conscience was suddenly eased of all qualms concerning Philip Veritzen.

For Dicky was in his riding togs and he was striding up and down the veranda with the impatience which he exhibits at anything which inconveniences him. My intuition, fired by a bit of gossip I had heard two days before from Mrs. Ticer, told me what both his attire and his impatience signified. He was going riding with Eleanor Lincoln and he was furious because Katie had not yet announced breakfast.

Mrs. Ticer's garrulous comment sounded in my ears as strongly as if my neighbor, who was temporarily serving Miss Lincoln, was present in the flesh upon our veranda.

"What do you think that girl's done now? Bought her a horse and says she is going riding if she can find anybody who rides well to go with her. Says she can't stand it to ride with anybody who can't take fences."

She had accompanied the remark with an odd side glance at me which I had been too busy to notice, but which I had subconsciously filed away in my mind for future consideration. Now I realized what Mrs. Ticer had meant by that glance which held both comprehension and good natured sympathy in it. She knew that Dicky was the only horseman in the neighborhood who could "take fences," and she also knew that I was but an indifferent rider, who only occasionally rode the horse which my father's thoughtfulness had provided for me at the farm when he had offered to take care of Dicky's mount there. It had been plain that my neighbor believed Dicky would be only too ready to provide companionship for Miss Lincoln upon her rides.

Of one thing I was sure. Dicky would use no subterfuge about his proposed excursion. In addition to his aversion to anything clandestine, he knew the garrulousness of the Ticers. The news of any call of his at The Larches would be brought to me within 24 hours.

His first words proved the truth of my theory. As he heard my step on the veranda he turned and his wrath exploded in a fashion most familiar to me.

"For chasing the lion around the cage!" he growled. "Have you actually condescended to get up? Do you think it would be too much exertion for you to go out to the kitchen and prod that pterodactyl into action? I've got an engagement to go riding with Miss Lincoln at 9 o'clock and if Katie keeps me waiting much longer I'll have to go without my breakfast."

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

Pirates Not Yet in Form Despite Pleasing Brace and Fans Must Not Expect Best Work for While—Grimes Wins His First Victory for Bucs in Eleven Years—Grantham Clubbing Ball—Adams Making Up For Poor Start.

AFTER that first brief period of gloom, things are looking up for Father Pitt in a baseball way. Fandom's smile that followed the first victory of the season for the Pirates on Sunday, broadened into a grin when the Buccaneers followed up by beating the Reds again yesterday, this time by the convincing score of 8 to 1.

George Grantham.

But for a fumble at shortstop with two out in the fifth, Burleigh Grimes would have placed a shutout to his credit in all probability. At that, however, he made the local fans feel assured that the Bucs have added another real pitcher to their staff this year by holding the Reds to one run and six scattered singles.

BUT don't expect too much, just because the Corsairs have managed to get started. Don't take it for granted that they are in their true stride now and will continue their winning gait without interruption.

For as a matter of fact the club is still a considerable distance from being at its best. In the pitching and catching departments, particularly it is still sorely crippled, and it would be unjust to expect them to keep going at their new pace indefinitely before they have had a fair chance to attain a fair degree of all-around fitness.

Quite a long time elapsed between pitching victories by Burleigh Grimes for Pittsburgh. Prior to yesterday, the last occasion on which he won for the Bucs was on May 10, 1917, at Boston, when he followed Al Mamaux and Bullet Miller on the rubber in the fifth inning with the score tied and won out against Jess Barnes, Art Nehf and Ed Ruelbach.

It is hoped that the same story will not follow his victory of yesterday, for after his Boston win 11 years ago, Burleigh lost 13 straight.

The last full game he pitched and won for the Corsairs, preceding that of yesterday, was played here on April 28, 1917, when Burleigh shut out the Reds, 2 to 0, with Sanders as a slab opponent.

Except for Grimes himself, the only man who took part in that game who is still playing in the majors is Max Carey. Bill Hinchman, Pirate scout, was also one of the participants.

Sparky Adams.

EVEN when the Pirates were losing the first three games of the season, George Grantham's hitting stood out like a light-house in the fog. The Arizona boy's work has been one of the big features of the Pittsburgh team's work to date. He was in a batting slump on the training trip, but since the real games began George has been pasting the pellet all over the landscape. In 19 times at bat up to date he made 11 hits, including two doubles, for the robust average of .579.

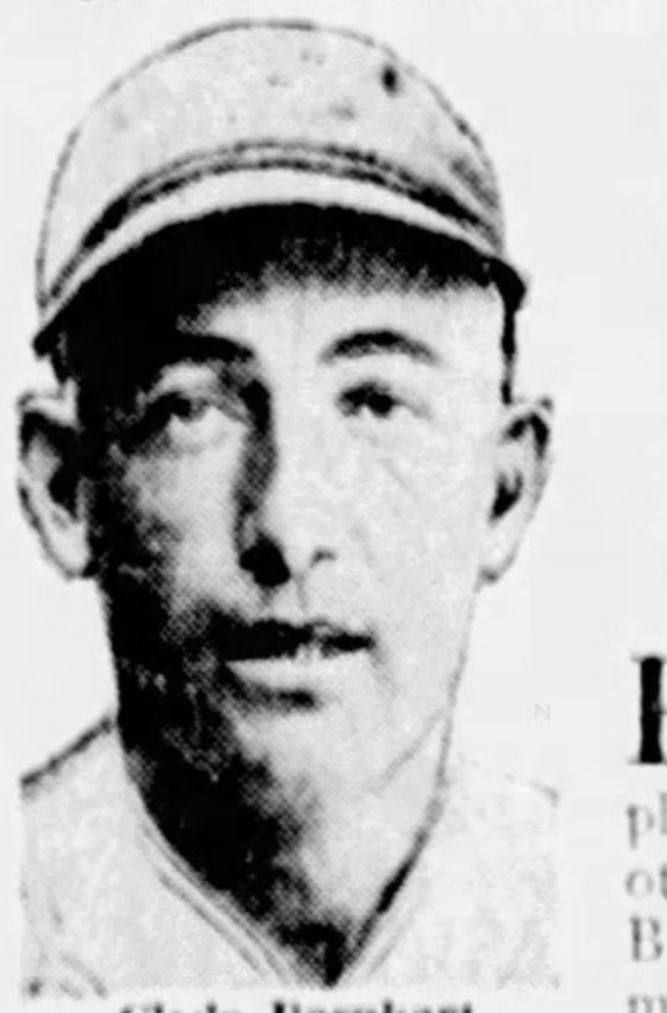
That's partly the result of being back in a position where he is contented and where he is not continually doubting himself, as he was at second base.

Grantham and Paul Waner, by the way, are the only Pirates who batted safely in every one of the first five games.

IT TOOK Sparky Adams a while to get started on the offensive end of the game, but he made up for lost time Sunday and yesterday, when he clouted out six safeties with a triple included.

The little fellow went to bat 13 times before he got a hit, but in two games he boosted his average from .000 to .273.

Aha! Max Carey, Hazen Cuyler, Frankie Frisch, George Grantham, Sparky Adams and the rest of the established stars may not have the base-stealing glory all to themselves this season. The new speed threat is none other than Clyde Barnhart. Just how he did it, no one knows, but the official box scores are the authority for the statement that "Pooch" stole a base in St. Louis last Thursday and another in Cincinnati yesterday. It is a bit of quite interesting, even though surprising information, for it means in the first five games this season Barnhart has stolen as many bases as he stole in 108 games during all of last season. And if he succeeds in stealing one more he will have purloined as many as he pilfered in the last two complete seasons combined, as in 1926 he stole only one base. The new base bandit, by the way, was the only Pirate who failed to get a hit yesterday.



Clyde Barnhart.

PRACTICALLY every major league club has on its roster one or more players who formerly worked for some other team in the big show, but the Brooklyn troupe appears to present the most complete case of an outfit that has been constructed of material cast aside by competitors.

The entire regular lineup of the Robins in the present pennant race is made up of discards.

Bisonette, the new slugging first baseman, was tried by the Yankees as a left-hand pitcher; Riconda, at second, served time with both the Athletics and Braves; Bancroft starred at shortstop for the Phillies, Giants and Braves; Freigau played third for the Cardinals and Cubs.

Of the outfielders, Carey formerly was a Pirate, Hendrick as a Yankee, and Tyson was a Giant.

The men named do not nearly complete the list of discards now on the Dodger payroll. Consider the pitchers. Even the great Dazzy Vance himself was turned adrift by both the Pirates and Yankees in 1916. Petty was with the Indians, McWeeny with the Whitesox, Elliott with the Browns, Doak with the Cards, and Ehrhardt with the Cubs and Reds. Of the catchers,

VICTOR FLOORS FOE 12 TIMES

By HARRY KECK,
Sun-Telegraph Sports Editor.

BY a margin of 12 knockdowns and a couple of slips for good measure, Jack Zivic won his alleged grudge fight with Jack Katkish, his former sparring partner, in the main bout at Motor Square Garden last night before the largest boxing crowd of the season here.

As a fight it wasn't. Katkish appeared to be scared to death of his former mentor from the moment they met in the center of the ring for instructions and he went through a series of ups and downs such as you never saw before until the welcome final clang of the gong. It was welcome to both Katty and the spectators, as well as to the Referee Al Grayber, who almost lost his voice counting and his strength prying Katty loose from the clinches between knockdown.

As a spectacle it was one of those things you seldom see. There was Katty strong enough to absorb all the punishment Zivic handed out and yet so weak in the knees from sheer ring fright that he couldn't stand up and fight back.

Big Ten Head Fails To Rouse A. A. U.

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP.)—Criticism levelled against the A. A. U. and its methods by Major John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics of the Western Conference, aroused slight interest among officials of the organization here.

Griffith, at Chicago, suggested reorganization of the American Olympic Association to end what he termed A. A. U. "domination over American amateur athletics."

Although not disposed to regard the commissioner's charges very seriously, Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U. took exception to Griffith's statement that the majority of colleges are not in accord with the A. A. U. and its methods.

RULES TO BE DISCUSSED

Henry J. Blum and Dan B. Dougherty, local basketball officials, will be Pittsburgh's delegates to the joint rules committee meeting, scheduled in New York Thursday.

GRIMES HURLS WELL

The decisive triumph recorded by the Pirates in the third clash with the Reds ended with the score 8 to 1. The contest brought to Burleigh Grimes his first Pirate victory since the veteran made his return to the club which gave him his start in the majors. Grimes tangled with Grover Alexander a few days ago in St. Louis, the mas-

Paddock Quits Famous Jump Finish

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—(AP.)—Charley Paddock, former Olympic champion and holder of several world spring records, has abandoned his famous "jump" finish.

"The picture men still ask me to leap, but I no longer do it in a race," Paddock said. "I cut that out some time ago."

Paddock's famous "jump finish" appealed to schoolboys, and in many meets throughout the country the youngsters would leap at the finish, even though some of them were listed with the "also rans." Many coaches tried to discourage the practice, pointing out that a runner had to recoil before jumping, losing precious fractions of a second.

SIGNS WITH CHARLEROI

ELLWOOD CITY, April 17.—An Ellwood City boy will have a tryout with a Middle Atlantic team this year. He is Frank Fitzgerald, who left yesterday for Charleroi. He starred here as a high school athlete. He is said to be a clever outfielder and has played with many of the local semi-pro teams.

Englishman Holds Lead

TULSA, Okla., April 17.—(AP.)—Forty-three days out of Los Angeles, and with approximately half of the distance to New York covered, the 70-odd cross-country marathoners camped here last night with Peter Gavuzzi, Southampton, England, winner of yesterday's lap from Bristow. He also is the leader in elapsed time.

Little more than a day away from Claremore, Okla., his home town, Andrew Payne, Oklahoma's entrant, was unable to meet the Britisher's challenge, and fell more than an hour behind in elapsed time. Gavuzzi seized the leadership after Payne had held it since the runners entered the state a week ago.

Gavuzzi ground out the 41.7 miles yesterday in 4 hours 47 minutes, his elapsed time being 270:41:05. Payne finished third in 5:29:58, with the elapsed time of 271:47:29. Giusto Umek, Italian champion, came in second in 5:28:26.

Payne, openly reiterated at the home-state reception which has proved somewhat bothersome, has attempted to dodge cheering crowds that lined the roadway. At the finish line yesterday he mildly chided the enthusiastic supporters, saying, "I'm just one of the bunch, I wish they would let me rest a bit."

slump when the bell rang. Any team seemed able to trim the champions in the days preceding the opening, but things are quite different now.

GRIMES held the Reds to six hits and probably would have had a shutout had Wright not contributed a fumble. The outcome of the game, however, with the Reds scoring a run, was just as sweet to the Pirates. A shutout victory doesn't mean a bit more than the kind of a triumph won by the Pittsburghers on the merit of Burleigh's pitching.

JOHNNY GOOCH caught a splendid game. Gooch is still far off form, but he surely knows how to handle Grimes' spitball. In the event of an injury to Johnny, Ralston Hemsley will have to swing into action.

Pirate Game Called Off

ter achieving a shutout success over the Freebooters.

Eppa Jeppa Rixey was one of the principal casualties in the rampage of the Buccaneers. The courteous Virginian is generally a tough gent for the Pirates, but Rixey's supporting cast blew up like an amateur minstrel show on the first night, the result giving the Bushwhackers a generous lead right at the start.

Critz, Callaghan, Walker and Ford went into a huddle in a loft struck by George Grantham with runners on third and second and two out in the first frame. The ball should have been caught by somebody wearing the Red spangles, but it wasn't. It was in the air so long that Matty Schwab, the groundkeeper, could have made the capture after dropping his rake. But it was one of those things that make baseball interesting when it doesn't happen to the home club. The 2,500 fans at the encounter used this incident as ammunition with which to heckle the Reds throughout the contest.

WORK SQUEEZE PLAY

Another outstanding development was a remarkable squeeze play put over by Burleigh Grimes. The Pirates of recent years have not been known as squeeze-play players, but Grimes certainly did put over the offense maneuver with eclat. Burleigh came up in the fourth round with Grantham on third, Gooch on first and one out. The Red infield seemed to be charging Grimes when he bunted a "dribbling liner" over the altitudinous head of George Kelly. As well as this trick being one for the book, the tap was the pay ball, three runs being scored in the frame.

The huddle stunt of the first was the big noise in three tallies made in this frame, and Burleigh's astonishing squeeze was the pivotal punch in the fourth. Single tallies were made in the fifth and sixth.

Glenn Wright's messing of Sukeforth's easy roller in the fifth opened the way for the only tally made by the Rhinelanders. Two were out at the time and Glenn had a force play in front of him. Recruit Pitcher Jim Joe Edwards, late of Seattle, followed with a single that scored Horace Ford. Jim Joe and Clyde Sukeforth relieved Rixey and Capt. Hargrave after the fourth frame.

Sparky Adams and George Grantham kept up their fine offensive work. Sparky rapped out three more hits, while Grantham continued the fast stride he has set since the season started. Boots connected for two, although his double was the horseshoe affair involving the huddle.

HIGH SCHOOLS TO SWIM FOR RED CROSS TROPHY

Local high school swimmers will participate in the fifth annual life saving contest for the American Red Cross Trophy in the Fifth Avenue High School pool on Thursday afternoon beginning at 4 o'clock. Capt. Kieb of the Red Cross will be referee.

Director C. L. Walsh also announces that a special 220-yard swim, with three starters from each school, will be held in the same pool Monday of next week.

NOTES of the BOXERS

THERE will be no boxing show at Motor Square Garden next week because of the dance Marathon there. If the weather does not get too warm another ring show may be held later, otherwise the season closed with last night's offering.

Pete Zivic has been matched to box Leo (Kid) Roy, former featherweight champion of Canada, at Montreal Wednesday night of next week.

Terry McManus, Lawrenceville flyweight, scored two victories last week, one at Johnstown on Tuesday night and the other at Wheeling on Saturday. He is open for further engagements. John Bowler is handling him.

Jimmy McLarnin boxes Eddie (Kid) Wagner at Detroit tonight. Vince Dundee meets Jackie Fields at Los Angeles and Jack Gross, Philadelphia heavyweight, opposes Tom Hawkins at San Diego, Cal.

Johnny Ray is back from his visit to Hot Springs, Ark.

Joe Phillips will box Johnny Shupack of Paterson, N. J., in the main bout of a show at Oil City next Monday night. Al Delmonte of Erie and Johnny Hahn of Oil City will meet in the feature preliminary and Jimmy Kirkpatrick of New Castle and Mike Mulligan of Erie are booked in another clash.

Charley Brodd and Ed Gibbons, rival heavyweights of McKeesport, have been matched for the opening bout on the California Joe Gans-Frankie Gordini card at McKeesport Thursday night. Frankie Porto of McKeesport and Ken Hargraves of New Kensington will hook up in the semi-final.

East Liberty Post No. 5 of the American Legion will hold an amateur boxing show and general entertainment in the Signal Corps Armory, Penn avenue and Station street, this evening. Five bouts, headed by a meeting between Joe Profio and Leo Kybursky, are scheduled, along with a vaudeville program.

Jack Zivic vigorously protested being introduced at last night's fight as hailing from New York.

Frank Monroe, Fair Haven middleweight, has been matched by his new manager, Reed Brown, to box Mickey Fedor in a 10-round bout at Alliance, O., Thursday night of next week.

A letter awaits Sandy Seifert at this office. Also one for James (Red) Mason.

Phil Goldstein ran into a tough one in his bout with Eddie Elkins at Holyoke, Mass., last Friday night, apparently winning the bout only to have the decision go to his opponent. It was an exciting battle, according to newspaper clippins just received.

The Pittsburgh Lyceum will hold an amateur boxing show in its gymnasium Tuesday night of next week. All bouts will be decisions.

Blindfolded . . . in scientific test of leading Cigarettes, W. T. Benda selects

Old Gold

W. T. Benda, in his studio...while test was being made. In background may be seen some of the famous Benda masks.

"I have been an inveterate cigarette smoker for years and my interest in cigarettes not only induced me to make this blindfold test, but to make it three times in succession.

"Each time I selected the same cigarette—OLD GOLD.

"However, there was no other choice that I could honestly make. OLD GOLD was so superior and its delicacy of aroma, its rich, full flavor so entirely free from any hint of sting or burn that it immediately appealed to my taste.

"Since the test I have been smoking OLD GOLDS steadily and I find that they are the most satisfying cigarettes I have ever smoked."

How Test Was Made

Mr. Benda was blindfolded, and, in the presence of two responsible witnesses, was given one each of the four leading cigarettes to smoke. To clear the taste, coffee was served before each cigarette. Mr. Benda was unaware of the identity of these cigarettes during test. After smoking the four cigarettes, he was asked to designate by number his choice. He replied, "Number 4," which was OLD GOLD

Critics See Close Fight

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP.)—Eight teams well matched on paper form the basis for confidence of President John Conway Toole and owners of International League clubs for a successful 1928 season, opening tomorrow.

The Newark Bears, popular favorites during the winter months, open the season as hosts to Toronto handicapped by the absence of Walter Johnson, manager and pitcher. He is in a Washington Hospital. Hugh McQuillan, another pitcher, is suffering from a sore arm. Al Mamaux will pitch the opening game.

Toronto boasts a pitching staff in first class condition. Bill O'Hara will call on Jess Doyle to pitch the opener.

Jersey City and Rochester should have a hard-fought opening series. Frank Gilhooley is making his managerial start with the Skeeters while Billy Southworth, the former Brave, Pirate, Giant and Cardinal star, is leading Rochester.

Buffalo, champions in 1927 and rated as strong as last year, will pry off the lid by meeting the Baltimore Orioles at Baltimore. Baltimore, after missing out on the league flag for a year, is hopeful of staging a comeback and retrieving lost honors this season.

Montreal, newly admitted to the league, replacing the Syracuse team, will engage Reading in the inaugural.

HUDKINS SIGNS FOR TITLE GO

The match will take place in Chicago either late in June or early in July, Mullen said.

the referee while receiving instructions for the arbiter to watch Katkish. "He goes down without getting hit to get resin on his gloves!" Zivic kept repeating until the ref told him to shut up. Katty burned up and folded up and didn't amount to anything thereafter. And he did go down several times without being hit and took so many counts he had the crowd dizzy. And all of this after the fine fighting and punching he has been doing in his recent battles in the same ring leading up to this one.

Katkish rushed and missed a left swing and fell down to start the first round and when he got up Zivic went close and roughed him and mugged him and appeared to be trying to gouge his eyes with his thumbs and left-hooked him and hung all over him and pounded him on the body and cuffed him on the side of the head in the clinches and crowded and bullied him and just simply did everything to him but take his shoes off his feet. The crowd yelled for Katkish to stand up and fight and just before the bell he did, landing two wild left swings to the head and following with a right from which Zivic backed into the ropes in his own corner. Katkish, gaining confidence, failed to heed the bell and continued to fight after it, with Zivic's hands down, and Zivic punched him back before the referee got between them.

Zivic continued the mauling process to begin the second round and had matters all his own way. Just before the end of the session, he scored with a left hook to the head and Katkish sank slowly to the floor in midring to take a count of eight on one knee for Knockdown No. 1.

FULL OF KNOCKDOWNS

From then on Katty's going down and getting up became monotonous. He took nine and no count on visits to the floor in the third round; was saved by the bell at the count of four and reeled drunkenly about the ring and had to be helped to his corner in the fourth; was down for nine, no count, nine and nine again in the fifth, but finished the round strong; went down for no count in the sixth; took eight and no count in the seventh, weathered the eighth round without a knockdown; took eight in the ninth and fell down just as the bell ended the tenth round.

And so it came to pass that Katty's bubble burst and he'll have to start all over again and Zivic turned in a victory after losing to Young Saylor and Willie Harmon here this season. It was Zivic's first bout in three months and he looked fairly good considering the layoff. He will remain here until tomorrow night, when he leaves for Chicago to box Jack McCarthy, an up-and-coming youngster, next Monday night. He weighed 147 pounds against 144 for Katkish at 3 o'clock yesterday.

SCELLO FINISHES STRONG

Phil Scello of McKeesport, 145 pounds, came from behind to outscore Larry Brignolia of Erie, same weight, by a slight margin in the eight-round semi-final, but the officials saw it otherwise and Brignolia walked off with the unanimous decision of the two judges, Jack Simco and Jim McLaughlin, while the referee, Joe Keally, voted for a draw. Brignolia, a tough puncher, who walked in with head lowered and both arms dangling at his sides, made a hit with the crowd and punished Scello severely in the first two rounds, flooring him for no count in the first session, but Scello then outboxed him slightly in the third round, lost the fourth and carried the last four, during which he clearly outboxed and at times outslugged Brignolia, forcing the latter to break ground. Scello was in much the better shape of the two at the finish.

LOUDER REPEATS WIN

In the six-rounder, Joe Louder of the South Hills, 147½ pounds, repeated his recent victory over Jack Unglo of Etna, 148½, after a slow start. He let Unglo do most of the forcing until the fourth round and from then on rocked Jack with a series of straight rights to the jaw that had him wobbling. Unglo substituted on short notice for Joe Pegley of Sharpsburg, who failed to pass the doctor's examination in the afternoon.

Bob Krape of Homewood, 158 pounds, outslugged Pete Kuzma of the South Side, one pound heavier, in the second bout of four rounds. They are Pennsylvania Railroad rivals. Mike Hogan of the North Side, 133½ pounds, making his professional debut, knocked out Frank Todd of McKeesport, son of Bob Todd, the veteran manager, in the second round of the opener.

TECH TRAINER TREATS EARL SMITH'S BUM LEG

BERT MUNHALL EARL SMITH

Catcher Earl Smith was sent home to rest up after suffering a sprained tendon and broken blood vessel in his right leg in fielding a bunt in front of the plate by Dressen in last Saturday's game with the Reds at Cincinnati, and he is shown above receiving treatment from Bert Munhall, trainer of the Carnegie Tech athletes, to whom he was sent by Dr. William L. Marks, the club physician. The leg is badly swollen. Picture was snapped in Earl's room in the Schenley Hotel.

LIL' ARTHUR KAYOED

TOPEKA, Kan., April 17.—(AP.)—Bearcat Wright, Omaha Negro, knocked out Jack Johnson, former champion of the world, in the fifth round here last night, a solar plexus blow followed by an uppercut put the former champion down for the count.

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

DeBerry worked for the Indians and Henline caught for the Phillies, besides being owned for a short time by the Giants.

Dazzy Vance.

EVEN the utility men on Uncle Robbie's crew were let go by some other big league clubs; Flowers played for the Cardinals, Herman for the Tigers and Redsox, Bressler for the Athletics and Reds, and Statz with the Giants and Redsox and Cubs.

This seems to leave Partridge as the only Brooklyn player, apart from such batterymen as Hargreaves, Williams and Clark, who never drew pay from any other major league club.

Manager Robinson surely has set a new mark this year for making use of timber thrown aside by other managers in putting together his team. It's the most patched-up outfit in either of the big loops. And when you think of the ranking of Vance and Petty as pitchers the conclusion is forced that it is sometimes possible to get a great deal out of material that has been cast aside by some one else as unfit for the majors.

HELD AND DAWSON, GOLF STARS, IN AUTO CRASH

ROANOKE, Va., April 17.—(INS.)—John Dawson, of Chicago, and Eddie Held, of New York, star amateur golfers who were hurt when their automobile turned over between Rocky Mount, N. C., and Martinsville, Va., while motoring from Pinehurst to White Sulphur Springs, were brought here for treatment. Dawson was in the hospital today with a broken ankle and will be laid up for some time. Held was not seriously hurt and was able to proceed to White Sulphur Springs where he is to participate in the Mason and Dixon tournament. Dawson was scheduled to play in the same tournament.

Readers Offer Suggestions To Relieve Unemployment

—By B. C. FORBES—

THOSE of us who have steady jobs may be inclined to bother little about unemployment. But those who are unable to find work naturally are very greatly worried. Few curses are more grievous to bear than enforced idleness, especially when accompanied by lack of money.

Suggestions aimed at relieving unemployment are flowing in, particularly from those who are out of work.

MANY different steps probably would be necessary to solve the problem in anything like a permanent way.

Shorter working hours might conceivably help. "Pay higher wages" sounds fine, but there are many angles—including international angles—to that proposal. One suggestion made by a writer to this column the other day was that employers give preference to men and single women and not employ married women who really do not badly need the money.

Secretary of Labor Davis is urging employers and their staffs of investors and scientists and research men to evolve new industries having an appeal to the public and the public's pocketbook, thus absorbing a large number of workers, just as the motor industry has done.

America's best minds assuredly should concentrate on this whole problem of surplus labor. How to raise the purchasing power of the people to a point permitting of the buying and consuming of all that can be produced comes very near the crux of the problem.

A PITTSBURGH businessman, E. P. Rensi, writes in part:

"Every business that can possibly do so, should establish a six-hour day in their plants and cut wages 25 per cent to compensate for the 25 per cent reduction in working time. That would permit an additional 25 per cent of employment which could be operated during the six-hour day. Where it is not convenient to add more men during the six-hour day, the additional men could be taken on just the same, and then split up into two shifts of six hours each.

"Of course, there would be a howl at the beginning from a lot of the present employed, but there should hardly be any real reason for objection. Even among the steadily employed, it is doubtful if any great percentage work steadily every day throughout the year, either through illness, lack of work occasionally, or through desiring a rest now and then from the continuous 44 hours' work per week. When we get down to the fine points, the average yearly income is probably no greater in most cases than it would be under a six-hour day with a proportionate decrease in wages, and prospects of working steady.

"This arrangement would not necessarily have to be permanent."

FROM Jersey City come these suggestions:

"1. That all legal holidays be strictly observed in letter and spirit, so that men and women may have more time to spend with their families.

"2. That business hours (9 in the morning until 5 in the evening) be made a general rule and not a special privilege.

"3. That all employers take an inventory of all employes and their labors, and grant as many increases in salary as possible, every six months."

H. J. TANNER, San Francisco, says:

"There is always, fundamentally, a solution to the problem of unemployment, as long as there exists the natural resources, the labor power and the management for the plentiful production and the distribution of goods and services. There is no possible solution only where existing resources are insufficient.

"But the rational solution would necessitate the worker getting the full value of what he produced, and that would hurt some interests that profit by the present system. In this bountiful country there is no need and no excuse for poverty and want."

H. G. KRAKE, of Coloma, Michigan, who signs himself, "A Dirt Farmer," contributes this:

"At a time when newspapers and magazines are stressing stories of phenomenal prosperity in this country, it calls for real nerve for a writer to touch upon the other side of the subject—and there is another side, unmistakably. I venture the guess that 75 per cent realize that the prosperity talked of is not general; that not more than a very limited proportion of our people are actually in prosperous circumstances—unless, maybe, there is included among the prosperous (?) those of us who are straining our 'personal credit' to the breaking point.

"Raising unrealizable hopes leads to over-buying, waste and extravagance. Giving all the facts is, in the long run, certain to prove the better course."

WHAT suggestion or suggestions have some of our large employers to offer?

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, April 17.—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 5 to 10 points under liquidation and local selling, promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and better weather advices.

The decline to 19.61c for July and 19.48c for October was checked by trade buying of coverings, however, and the market recovered its initial losses before the end of the first hour, active months selling a point or two above yesterday's closing quotations. Buying seemed to be encouraged by reiterated reports that recent low temperatures would necessitate considerable replanting in the south and the cost of good planting seed was advancing.

Private cables said there had been liquidation in the Liverpool market owing to the weakness of the market for Egyptian cotton in Alexandria and the reports of labor troubles in America and Bombay. The strike among cotton mill operatives in Bombay is thought likely to affect Indian cotton chiefly, but there may have been a little selling here early on the strike in the New Bedford mills.

The market showed increasing firmness later on expectations of a bullish weekly report from the weather bureau tomorrow and fear of a renewal of unfavorable weather in the South within the next two or three days. Offerings were lighter after the initial selling had been absorbed, and the market made high ground for the movement, May selling up to 20.10c and October to 19.87c or about 23 to 38 points net higher at midday.

STOCKS BREAK AS TRADERS UNLOAD

NEW YORK, April 17.—(AP.)—Stock prices suffered another sharp setback today despite efforts of speculators for the advance to maintain bullish enthusiasm by bidding up a selected list of oil, food and public utility shares. Losses in the active issues ranged from 1 to nearly 6 points. So great was the volume of trading that the ticker was 50 minutes behind the market at the end of the third hour.

While the reaction was regarded in some quarters as a correction of an over-bought speculative position, persistent liquidation of long holdings was reported by traders and investors who were becoming increasingly alarmed over the credit situation. The relatively low loan value placed by banks on many high-priced stocks, combined with repeated suggestions that federal reserve authorities were not exactly pleased with recent speculative excesses, tended to dampen bullish enthusiasm.

Twenty oil shares and half a dozen or more public utilities were bid up to record high prices in the early hours of trading, but part of the gains were forfeited when the selling movement assumed broad proportions.

Radio and General Electric each broke more than 5 points, the former touching 159½ as against a high of 196½ a few weeks ago. General Motors, Allied Chemical and Continental Can each reacted 4 points or more and Graham-Paige, New York Central, General Railway Signal, American Smelting, Wright Aeronautical and Union Carbide dipped at least 3 points before buying support became effective. Losses of 1 to 2 points were scattered throughout the general list.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, April 17.—Forecasts of rain in the southwest gave a sharp setback today to wheat values here. Besides, the Liverpool wheat market displayed unexpected weakness, and the quantity of wheat in Canada was shown to be 10,000,000 bushels more than had been reported. Opening ⅝ to 2⅝ off, Chicago wheat subsequently developed considerable power to rally. Corn and oats were relatively firm, corn starting unchanged ⅛ down, and later scoring some gain. Provisions tended to sag.

At noon wheat was 2⅛c to 2⅝c net lower and corn was down ⅛c to ⅝c.

With prospects of improved moisture conditions in the dry district southwest, and with temperatures more nearly seasonable, sellers of wheat were in a majority today a good deal of the time. Much of the selling was by speculators who professed belief that advances of 13c to 14c since last Wednesday had more than discounted unfavorable aspects of the domestic wheat crop situation.

On the other hand, No. 2 red winter wheat sold in Chicago today to shippers at $2 a bushel f. o. b. cars, and bids to the country for red winter wheat to arrive were advanced 2c to 3½c over May. Furthermore, reports that severe dust storms in Oklahoma were causing damage to wheat led to renewed buying at times. There were also fresh advices of crop backwardness in Nebraska, one authority reporting that from Hastings to Lincoln and Omaha the fields had not made any material top growth for a month.

WITHEROW STEEL COMMON SELLS AT NEW HIGH

NARROW RANGE IN FUELS

Demand for Witherow Steel forced the price of the common shares to a new high record today on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange, but failed to bring out stock in any volume. Only a few scattered offers were in the market.

Strength in the issue over the past few months has been due to the reported placing of large orders with the company by the leading automobile producer. Opening sale on Witherow common today was at 25, compared with sales around 12 the latter part of last year when the boom in the automobile stocks began on the New York Exchange.

Oil and gas issues here failed to reflect the big market for oils in New York, the prices for the local securities ranging close to the levels prevailing yesterday and volume of dealings being restricted to a few traders in the various stocks.

Manufacturing shares were dull and unchanged in the early session, although there was a moderate demand for some of the better grade glass stocks.

In the late market Harbison-Walker common established a new high at 200, up 8 points from the last previous sale. A block of 100 shares changed hands at the new top figure. Strength was in response to the company's report for the first quarter, showing a substantial increase over the same period a year ago.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Oil Output Declines.

Crude oil output in the United States for the week ended April 14 averaged 2,381,821 barrels daily, or a decrease of 33,188 barrels from the preceding week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal. Light oil production decreased 21,062 barrels. The decline was due largely to pinching-in of wells in Winkler county pool in West Texas.

Sees Spectacular Oil Move.

Hornblower & Weeks say: "Oil developments, both marketwise and in the industry should tend to increase speculation, both immediately and during the next few months. We think the year will be one of realignment in the oil industry and with several important mergers pending, substantial betterment in the earning outlook for the gasoline companies, the factors at present are making for spectacular moves in the oil group. While coppers temporarily lack the attention that we are now witnessing in the oils, the same spirited spontaneous buying may be expected when present accumulation of coppers has been completed. The trend still seems towards higher levels in the utilities."

Fleischman Company.

Earnings of Fleischman Company for first quarter of this year are expected to approximate $1.04 a share on the 4,500,000 shares of no par common stock outstanding. This would compare with $4,340,198, after all charges, including depreciation and federal taxes, or 96 cents a share on common stock in the first three months of 1927, and $4,956,237 or $1.10 a share in the last quarter of 1927. First quarter's results probably will show institution of further economies in operation as an offset to the reduction in the price of bulk yeast in the last quarter of 1927. Sales are expected to show an increase over the $15,130,160 reported in the first quarter of 1927. For the full year 1927 this item totaled $64,668,137, on which profit averaged 30 per cent, against 29.3 per cent in 1926.

Wire Wheel Merger.

It is expected that heavy demand for wire wheels which has made its appearance during the past year or so, as well as recent court decisions on the subject of wire wheel manufacture will result in a merger of several companies engaged in this industry. Preliminary conversations for this purpose have already taken place. Merger will be headed by Wire Wheel Corporation of America, which controls valuable patents and is now supplying the motor industry with about 70 per cent of its wire wheel equipment, with the exception of that used by Ford Motor Company. Rapid growth of the demand of wire wheel equipment calls for expansion of facilities of manufacture which could best be undertaken by a combination of resources of several wheel makers. At present wire wheel companies are in position to supply about 5 per cent of the automobiles manufactured with such equipment.

TODAY'S QUESTION—After a man is divorced, is his ex-wife's mother still his mother-in-law?

DR. J. C. ROSEBERGER,
Roosevelt Hotel,
Hollywood, California.

ANSWER—We are glad you asked that question. Is a man's ex-wife's mother his mother-in-law? Now, what do you think?

Try to solve these things for yourself. You can if you only will.

Look it up and then you won't forget. Read the decisions.

Ah, friends, read the decisions. "But," you may say, "we have no decisions." Then get some decisions.

Don't be one of those wishy washy people who never have a decision.

Perhaps they have decisions at the hotel. Ring for a boy and ask him to bring you a decision.

That is the only way to get things in this life.

BUGS BAER Says

CAP PARKER, of the Homeric, bobs up with the business that lavish radio programs are responsible for storms on land, sea and others.

The Homeric jammed into New York exactly twenty-four hours overdue after terrific storms which only required a station announcer to make them worse.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Electrical waves form a network of effervescent static which elbows in all directions through the air cushion of the earth thereby encouraging cyclones, typhoons and aerial knick-knacks.

Home talent bursting in Poughkeepsie may be responsible for an overdose of Vesuvius and a KDKA Sandman story in Pittsburgh is the uncle of a sirocco in the Sahara.

Parker claims that the Homeric jammed its schedule through one air riot for eighteen hours. By turning the buttons on his vest he could distinctly hear hostile tenors singing threats from all popular operas.

Floods, famine and associated sorrow in China can be traced to the Happiness Boys.

When you are rushing to the Kansas tornado cellars in an effort to avoid flying cattle, zooming barns and loose trees it requires no college education to realize that you are in the Dodge Hour.

Still, we landhuggers must put up with the storms at sea as best we can. If a neighborhood soprano thought she could save a life by lowering her voice she would immediately gargle her throat and reach an octave higher.

Strike Call Indicates No Peace for Operators

Further agitation in the coal fields came yesterday as a result of the efforts of some strike-breaking miners to go on strike on their own accord. Whether many or few respond to the call is of little moment. The significant thing is that any number will constitute an ''organization'' and be a sign to the operators that it will be very hard to run their mines ''unorganized.''

Of course they know that. They recognized that fact when they attempted to organize the ''company union,'' using the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce as the cat's paw to pull their extremely hot chestnuts out of the fire.

The Pittsburgh Coal Company boasts that it never will negotiate with the United Mine Workers again. ''Never'' is a long time.

Companies that break legal agreements with their employes need not expect peace.

More Employment Here New Prosperity Sign

Employment in Pittsburgh factories increased in March 1.5 per cent, according to reports from more than 800 establishments received by the Federal Reserve Bank in Philadelphia. Even if this be but a reflection of seasonal expansion it is cheering.

With a great structural program under way and many other big private and public improvements contemplated to begin soon, the increase in factory operation adds force to the stream of prosperity. Within a few days we have heard that the Pennsylvania Railroad will spend more than $5,000,000 here and that Horne's will expend half a million improving their big store. The county commissioners have just awarded contracts for two important bridges and for the paving of county roads.

As the period of good weather advances more and more work will be started in the city and throughout the county. Several new sky-scrapers have reached the stage of construction which will require the employment of larger forces and there is a great deal of home building in suburban districts.

Many things point to a good summer for Pittsburgh.

Coal Rates Injunction Is Favorable to South

Relief expected by Pennsylvania and Ohio coal operators through the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission in the lake ports coal rate case is withheld, temporarily at least, by a decision of the Federal Court for the Southern district of West Virginia.

An injunction asked by southern railroads was granted. It is against the Interstate Commerce Commission, which had allowed lower rates to railroads shipping from Ohio and Pennsylvania. When southern railroads attempted to lower their rates accordingly, the commission disallowed the proposed tariffs, and it is against this action of the commission the injunction is directed.

The result is to put the situation as it was, in regard to advantage in the coal market to and through lake ports. Shippers closer to the ports claimed they were entitled to lower rates because of the shorter haul and that the same rates for shipments via southern roads for a longer haul permitted southern mines to compete for markets not theirs by nature.

These claims by the northern shippers were upheld by the commission as constituting evidence of discrimination when it allowed the lower rate for the original petitioners and denied the right of the southern railroads to meet the reduction with one of their own.

This is a matter that has caused a great deal of complaint and bitterness and it recently resulted in the rejection of reappointment of an interstate commerce commissioner by the United States Senate. His stand in behalf of the northern shippers had made him objectionable to some Senators and he was ied confirmation.

With so much depending upon the outcome, it is highly per that the matter be fought out to final decision by the preme Court, to which appeal has been made.

Oil Waste

Bad System Chief Destroyer of Naval Reserves

Of course, Sinclair and Fall and Doheny are sensational, and it looks terrible when we read of Sinclair's $233,000 to Fall, his $160,000 to the Republican Campaign Committee, and Doheny's $100,000 delivered in the little black satchel.

But these three men are not the chief destroyers of our Naval oil reserves.

They are being destroyed, not by a few crooked individuals, but by a system. That system prevails in the entire oil industry, which—its own engineers admit—wastes as much oil as it gets out of the wells.

Every drop of oil in the ground is a part of the Navy and Army oil reserve, for Army and Navy would have first call on all oil in case of war.

Whoever wilfully wastes the precious and limited oil deposits of the United States is hastening the time when there will be none left, to the peril of our national defense.

The engineers of the oil companies are agreed that the present competitive and unscientific method of oil extraction results in finally recovering only half as much oil out of a given pool as could be recovered by scientific, co-operative methods.

The oil engineers say that for every barrel of oil now brought to the surface, a barrel is lost beyond recovery in the sand.

That is, the oil companies produced 900,000,000 barrels last year AND THEY UNNECESSARILY MADE 900,) BARRELS MORE INCAPABLE OF RECOVERY.

President Coolidge knows these things. He became d in 1924 and appointed the Federal Oil Conservation Board to stop the waste by persuading or forcing the oil companies to produce all the oil in the ground instead of just half of it.

The President's board has a record of precisely zero. It is laughed at and disregarded by the oil industry, and afraid to exert the authority of the Government to enforce oil conservation in the interest of the national defense and our industrial future.

Of course Congress can get a lot of newspaper publicity by pursuing Fall and Doheny and Sinclair, and, of course, they and their fellow grafters ought to be exposed.

But if Congress is really interested in saving the reserves of oil for the Navy, the Army, the automobilist, and every industry in the land, Congress had better stir the Federal Oil Conservation Board into activity or have another board appointed.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Earning Eternal Life

DR. WILLIAM BROWN, psychologist of London, lecturing at Yale University, recently said that science could not prove that the mind (soul) may not survive death. I don't think that science has ever set out to prove any such thing. It approaches from another side. It has simply endeavored to find out, as far as it can, how life works.

Some biologists think that they can account for all observed phenomena ordinarily ascribed to independent action of the mind by the principle of reaction to physical stimuli. But that idea certainly does not prevail among scientific men in general, nor among all biologists.

But there was one statement made by Dr. Brown that leads on to thoughts, which though not essentially new may be of particular interest at the present time, when there is so great a breaking up of long cherished ideas about life, death and the future. This is what he is reported to have said:

"The self-conscious mind may have developed out of simpler forms of biological process, gradually achieving a greater and greater degree of independence until it is able to react upon the body with an increased degree of freedom and indetermination of physical activity, and so may eventually survive physical death."

That accords with what someone has called "conditional immortality." The idea of this is that all men may not possess a spiritual element, "mind," or "soul," destined to immortality, or life beyond the death of the physical body, but that such an element, or spiritual organization, may be acquired by some men during the course of their earthly life.

The action of physical upon super-physical things, which is implied in Dr. Brown's suggestion that the mind may develop into independence of physical control by "biological process," might be explained by analogy with the interaction between "the ether" and material bodies. An interesting point is that "conditional immortality" is implied in the fundamental doctrine of Christianity, as, for instance, when Christ said: "Verily I say unto you, if a man keep My word he shall never see death." Death here manifestly does not mean bodily death, while the "word" that was to be kept was the doctrine He taught, and over and over He declared that "eternal life" would be the reward for following His teachings.

There is, of course, a wide difference between this and Dr. Brown's "biological process," but the end is the same with both and also the implication that immortality is not a universal gift to mankind, but must be, in some way, obtained (obtain: "to procure, especially by effort.")

Those who refuse to regard, or to aim at, anything except purely worldly and selfish material comforts, pleasures and ambitions are in danger of neither "biologically" nor otherwise attaining the condition required for a continuance of personal existence beyond the death of the body.

There is a vivified force in high moral and intellectual endeavors that might well produce the effects ascribed by Dr. Brown to undefined biological action. It is a good investment that may have amazing results and can cause no loss.

Prince, Be Careful!

CAREFUL calculation shows that if all the falls of the Prince of Wales were put end on end, combined into one grand fall, it would be equal to a drop from the top of the Woolworth Building.

If there is anything in the law of averages, he is going to get hurt some day. That, of course, is a constant source of anxiety to his parents and the British government, who try in vain to dissuade him from the perilous sports of fox hunting and steeplechasing.

What is the charm in these sports? As for fox-hunting, James Boyd, well known author and master of a pack of foxhounds in South Carolina, gives an interesting answer. He says that fox-hunting is a grand sport because it satisfies the love of mankind for three things: Danger, dress and animals. You can't hunt without danger, you can't hunt without the proper and elaborate costume, and you can't hunt without animals.

President Coolidge's mechanical horse gives none of these thrills. But he gets as much exercise out of it as the Prince of Wales, and may live longer.

Lenity With Others

YOU like to have people definite in their dealings with you.

If they say they are going to do a thing, you want them to do it.

You want to have something upon which to depend, in home or business matters—and who does not?

But when it comes to your own case, it is so easy to forget and so much easier to excuse yourself for it.

Do you ever carry out an order or a commission and remember each detail, to have it exactly right?

When you shop you have to have a memorandum and then you cannot keep your eye following step by step to carry it out.

You skip from one thing to another and finally think of something quite foreign to the task in hand and the time is gone and your list incomplete.

It is a most exasperating habit you have of being indefinite.

Perhaps you don't date your letters.

"Tuesday," or "Home," or "After office hours" does not mean anything when it comes to dating a letter.

But when you want something badly enough yourself, isn't it different?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Dances

SHE comes! The spotlight flashes out
To muted melodies,
She moves like thistledown adrift
Upon a summer breeze.

(But I have seen the willow-leaves
On April morns astir,
So glad, so gay their dances are
I turn my eyes from her.)

She treads fantastic measures through
With lithe and artful grace;
Her body is a slender flame
And fair her painted face.

(But I have seen the moonlight dance
Upon the tossing sea . . .
This crowd, the music and the lights,
They drug, they stifle me!)

Tales that are Told

A Poor Return

AN UNUSUAL scene was being enacted in Farmer Giles' field. Puffing like a steam-engine, cursing his folly in allowing himself to grow stout, an old gentleman was running for his life from an infuriated bull.

At first it seemed as if he would be caught. But with one last, despairing effort the pursued one reached the end of the field and hurled himself over the gate in the nick of time.

For some moments he sat still, recovering his breath. Then, rising to his feet, he shook his fist almost apoplectically at the thwarted animal.

"You brute!" he spluttered. "And I've been a vegetarian all my life!"

Not Affection

THE conversation in the inn parlor had turned to the subject of married life. The stranger from London advanced the opinion that happiness was more often to be found in the country than amid the turmoil of town.

"Well, I ain't so sure about that," declared an aged rustic. "But I do know as 'ow I sat last night an' 'eld my missus' 'ands for two hours by the clock."

"There," said the stranger, "that just proves my theory, and shows how much you love each other."

"Love each other!" echoed the aged rustic. "Why, if I'd let go she'd 'a' scratched me eyes out!"—London Answers.

Mixed

THE quiet little woman approached the fish stall.

"Cut me a pound of cod," she requested.

But the proprietor was not anxious to cut into another fish. He picked up a piece from the board and threw it into the scale.

"That's a prime cut, ma'am—fourteen ahnces. Suit yer?"

"No, I want a pound, please."

He reached for another section and weighed it.

"Seventeen ahnces. All right?"

"No," said the little woman, firmly. "I want you to cut me a pound—no more, no less."

"Lummy, ma'am!" said the fishmonger, resentfully, as he emptied the scale and picked up his knife to comply, "you and yer pahnd of flesh! Reg'lar Shylock 'Olmes—that's what you are!"—London Tit-Bits.

A Poser

A NEGRO boy had been taken to the police station for some act of rather serious mischief, and his mother appeared in court to do what she could for her child.

After the boy had been questioned at some length, the mother interrupted by saying:

"Judge, yoah Honah! Ken Ah ask a question?"

On being assured that she might do so, she continued:

"Judge, yoah Honah, was you evah the fathah of a no-count colored chile?"

The magistrate assured her that he never had been.

"Well, Judge, yoah Honah, bein's you ain't, how you gwine tell me what to do wit him?"

Isn't It So?

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 17.—The only magazine ever fashioned solely for inhabitants of New York to meet with success is The New Yorker. It is a weekly publication that made the open and rather snooty avowal with its first issue that it was not for ''the old lady from Dubuque.'' Nearly all its editors are from the brush, however.

It was a weak-kneed infant that nearly tottered to oblivion during the first few months despite carrying at its masthead a glittering galaxy of bright young men who receive a favored bow from the head waiter at the Algonquin. It did not click.

Then a gentleman with a hefty bankroll got behind it. New life was breathed into its pages, the infant's eyelids began to flutter and it was in a short time yelping lustily. The editorial destinies are assigned to Harold W. Ross, from—of all places—Aspen, Colorado.

Today seven American cities have periodicals patterned after the New Yorker. Paris is issuing two and another is on the fire in London. From a cramped cubby-hole, the Journal moved into expensive offices occupying almost an entire floor of a big office building.

It is said Ralph Barton, the caricaturist, in its formation days, accepted stock in the magazine in lieu of cash, and today his dividends from that source help maintain his elaborate establishment in the Rue Nicolo in Paris.

The magazine editorially reflects the smugness that is typically New Yorkish. It has a jeer for the provinces and a cheerio for almost everything bearing the Manhattan trademark. And it thrives on this sort of sophistication.

While designed strictly for the metropolis, it circulates largely outside this area. New York in the past decade has had a dozen such class journals which soon expired of inanation. But the New Yorker, it would appear, has come to stay and has developed a half dozen writers and artists while rolling up circulation.

A telegram comes zipping from Los Angeles to inquire if it is true a Fifth avenue store is offering sun parasols in colors for men. We wouldn't know about that. But it would not surprise us. Nothing does since we learned the Nedick who sells orange juice is not a person but a trade name.

Indeed since a male beauty parlor opened on Fifth avenue, we suspect those men who talk in deep bass voices of acting and cup an ear for an expected falsetto.

A gentleman with a terrifying phobia for open spaces has been walking to Central Park after dark every evening, instructing the taxi driver to follow closely at his heels so he can hop in at any moment. The other night in the middle of the park he looked about and the taxi was not in sight. He yelled, whistled and screamed to no avail. And he arrived at an exit limp and dewey. The driver had lost him in the dark and also lost his job for the experience cured the gentleman of his phobia and he now walks in the park alone.

The tragic tale of a Siamese cat comes from a big hotel. One morning it was missed by a patron. After a complete search it was assumed it had fallen from a window to the street 23 floors below. On the fifth day, there was a weak and plaintive meow on a ledge near the window. The feline had apparently lost about eight of its nine lives in a cramped position in the wind and the rain. The ledge was only half as wide as its body.

Swindling the Preacher

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A Chicago theological seminary has just completed a survey or questionnaire investigating the amount to which preachers are swindled.

Its results show that the clergyman who escapes being swindled in the course of his ministry is an exception.

Every sucker list contains the names of many ministers, which makes them an easy prey for a sales talk.

The city pastor seems to be more worldly wise than his country cousin.

Ministers were asked five questions:

1. Have you ever been swindled by professional crooks?
2. If so, how, in your present opinion, could the swindle have been prevented?
3. Do you believe in punishing such crooks?
4. How may they be detected?
5. Have you any counsel to pass on to other ministers?

Almost all of the preachers said they had been swindled at various times in amounts ranging from a five-dollar bill given to a stranger with a plausible, heart-rending tale, afterwards found to be false, to thousands of dollars, lifetime savings, usually in oil and mining stocks.

Dr. Ozora S. Davis, president of the Chicago Theological Seminary, drew up these maxims:

Build a reputation for investigating.

Don't rely too much on your own judgment. Send the applicant for aid to the proper charitable organization. Consult a lawyer on important business dealings.

Don't give your card to strangers or letters of recommendation to men, organizations or plans with which you are not fully conversant. You may be an innocent aid to a swindler.

And last, study people.

One point that Dr. Davis makes should be stressed.

Use charitable organizations. A great deal has been said about their coldness and heartlessness, but much of it is due to the fact that they investigate every case they help and are much better prepared to investigate it than you are.

Don't let your sympathies run away with your judgment.

Most of the ministers seem to be more concerned with the spiritual than the material reaction of the swindler. They fear that the constant swindling of ministers might make them "hard boiled" or distrustful of their fellow men.

The minister sitting alone at home, or in his office, is usually more easily approached than a business man who is safeguarded by his staff.

Plans are being worked out at the school to train ministers in business and to prepare them against possible swindlers.

The preacher should remember that helping an unworthy man or a fraud is the most efficient way to harm him, and his help should be given only to those who actually need it. This for the sake of the poor rather than the minister's sake.

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD.

YOU'VE got to admit that Mrs. Knapp is the only person, man or woman, who ever made a census interesting.

A withered old lady sells flowers in front of Carnegie Hall in New York, and while April undoubtedly is doing things to her bones, the dear soul smiles happily. When she hobbles on a cane into the corner drug store for her cup of coffee at noon, the white, starched boys behind the soda counter all want to wait upon her at once. Surely she hasn't beauty, and you wouldn't call her woolen shawl stylish. She is poor and her tip is nothing more than a happy smile and a happy word.

That old lady with the basket of yesterday's flowers, never wishes she was someone or something else. The painted young things, who giggle over their double chocolate sundaes, with whipped cream and a cherry on top, look right past the lesson that would do them more good than four years in college.

Katrina, the 15-year-old daughter of Mrs. Medill McCormick, says she supposes she will have to be a politician, because her mother and her father and her grandfather were politicians, but she'd much rather be a horse trader.

"Do you know," says Katrina, "mother can beat me at everything except riding horses. She's great at tennis and she is a sure shot, but what she doesn't know about horses——"

Mrs. Hermann Koehl said, "You can't imagine what a load that is off my mind," when she was informed her husband had crossed the Atlantic safely. That is one of those rare times when the whole world worries with a woman about where her husband is.

Mrs. Eva Kolb, of Chicago, got arrested for violating the Prohibition law, but the United States commissioner didn't send her to jail. She is 68 and, after all, if a girl starts to go wrong at 68 she can't gain much momentum. They let her stay at home on the promise that she wouldn't raise too much cain.

Princess Chivekiar, of Egypt, was fined $1 in American money for insulting an American woman, Mme. Saida, who formerly was Mrs. George Spreckles. It was all about a silly little boat ride on the Bosphorus four years ago. To an American woman, a ride on the Bosphorus, is a ride on the Bosphorus—nothing more. Royalty should remember that.

It's the fifth court fight over that ride. There probably were twenty men in Egypt that Mme. Saida would rather have gone boat riding with, but it's just one of those things. She went with the princess' husband.
